LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Opium Menace:
Another Dive Into Past

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I see that ANTI-OPIUM has treated us with another dive into the historical past but it is a mere repetition of his last letter. I suppose this is what is generally known as "History repeats itself."

However, I can assure him that if what he relates is entirely true or partly true no Chinese has the wish to stand behind the erring officials in this respect but would condemn them even as he does if not more vehemently.

But I do not quite get what he means by "blame one's sins on others." Surely with his nom de plume, he does not mean that since some Chinese officials have condoned opium in the yesteryears, the Japanese are fully justified in her present campaign of quasi officially fostering opium in North China and other parts of the country under their military occupation, in other words, he is of the opinion that the Chinese of today should be poisoned by the Japanese and their henchmen thus paying for "the sins of their fathers?"

I should appreciate if he would state in unequivocal English whether he endorses the Japanese opium policy in China over which the present controversy has arisen (It started over MR. LACY'S letter condemning Japanese fostering opium in North China). Or else it would appear that another issue has been raised with a view to divert the fire from the point at issue and for purposes best known to the correspondent in question. Perhaps he does not mind to enlighten us under his nom de plume?

A Friday Search:
Complaint from Chinese

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper. in todays' issue, you published that the S.M.C. authorities accompany plain cloth Japanese searchers in their work throughout the day (Thursday). Yesterday at late noon I was stopped and searched by two plain cloth Japanese at Foochow Road near the Bund, they even looked into the contents of my pocket book.

Apparently satisfied, they nodded their thanks? and I was allowed to go on. Now coming from the opposite direction was a Chinese carrying a parcel accompanied by a Foreigner.

The Japanese searchers stopped the pair, and took away the parcel and commenced to tear away the wrapping to examine the contents, not being satisfied with the Chinese explanation, they took him by the arm and requested that he accompany them. The Foreigner explained but they completely ignored him.

The Japanese holding the parcel made a hostile move towards his back pocket, but the Foreigner had a large pistol in his hands pointing at them, something they said about being police and returned the parcel to the Chinese, they then turned away.

In a hurry to avoid the chance of a stray bullet, I stumbled, fell, broke my eye glasses and sprained my hand, the foreigner pointed his pistol at me, then helped me up.

Now if Guards were compelled by the S.M.C. to wear uniform, and plain cloth Japanese police carried cards or badges, this would not have occurred, I should not need to spend the cost of a new pair of eye glasses, suffer an injury to my hands and get a bad fright.

Israel Homesick for Zion

Sermon Preached in Bubbling Well Chapel By Rev. Dean Trivett at Evensong on July 3

TEXT:—"By the rivers of Babylon.. ....how shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land." Psalm 137: 1, 4.

THIS Psalm has a poetic power hardly surpassed by anything in the whole book of the Psalms. Even had it not been included in the Inspired Writings, it would have been given a high place in poetry. If in the closing verses we are repelled by those utterances of burning indignation, breathing direst hatred, we must remember before we critize too severely, that the writer and those for whom he wrote, had lived through those days pictured in the last chapter of the Book of Chronicles. They had seen their temple burned, their city ruined and destroyed, their wives ravished and their children slain. And now in far off Babylon they are in bitter slavery under the same savage and remorseless power. The whole Psalm is a wonderful mixture of soft melancholy and fiery patriotism. The hand that wrote it must have known how to smite sharply with the sword, as well as how to tune the harp. The words are burning words of a heart breathing undying love to his country, and also undying hate to his foe.

Israel were God's chosen people, to whom he might reveal his will, and through whom he might manifest his grace. And there is a very real sense in which they are typical of God's Church in all ages of the world. They are typical in many different ways of every individual believer.

With this thought of Israel's experiences as typical of the Christian's life and walk in the world. Let us look at the Psalm more closely. "These things were written for our learning." Let us look first of all, to see what it meant for Israel, and then what it typifies for us, and the lessons we should learn from it.

Israel in Babylon

First of all the Psalm shows us that Israel far off there in Babylon is homesick for Zion. Babylon has much to offer, but nothing avails to satisfy that longing in the exiles hearts for their native land, and for the temple of their God. And Israel in Babylon is typical of the sinner away in the far country from his God. We are reminded of the greatest of all the parables of Jesus, that of the Prodigal Son. The prodigal was an exile—self-chosen, but none the less bitter for that. He was in a far country, and it was the memory of home that filled his heart. It is true psychology. It is universal experience.

I know that there are other reflections. There are times when the awakened sinner finds himself the prey of fearing and despair.—Conscience awakes and he is filled with remorse. I know that sometimes when a man comes to himself, he can see nothing and hear nothing in the universe but the terrors and the judgments of the Sovereign God. But it was not terror that possessed the repentant Israelites in Babylon, it was not terror that moved the Prodigal, it was home for which they longed. It was memories of Zion that filled their eyes with bitter tears there beside the waters of Babylon. The Prodigal Son came to himself, and he remembered his Father's house. In type and parable the teaching is the same. We were not meant to be, and we cannot be, satisfied in the far country. We were not fashioned to be at home in sin. And no matter how far away from God he may wander, no matter how engrossed he may become in the life of the far country, the prodigal son will never be at rest and satisfied. As St. Augustine has so aptly said, "Thou hast made us for thyself, and we shall never be content until we rest in thee."

We bear the image of God. The native air of these hearts of ours is the love and purity and joy of faith and obedience. There may be interests and pleasures which at first attract and enthrall us in the world's Babylon, but they can never really satisfy. The world's good things soon prove to be husks, and like the prodigal, our hunger remains. These are but food for swine and unable to satisfy the sons of God. I am sure tonight that I am not talking about something which you do not understand, but that each one of us knows by bitter experience, how true it is. There was a time when you cherished ideals which find no place in the life you are now living. You have not been unsuccessful as the world counts success, but even in the way of attainment you have found the world empty, and vain, and unsatisfactory, its best fruits bitter in the eating. And there come times when you long for better things, for a life in which there shall be less of self and more of God, less of self pleasing and more of service and sacrifice.

Hunger of Soul

It has not been a longing after an impossible ideal. It has been the hunger, the homesickness of your soul for its true Fatherland.. But do not forget that you can satisfy that hunger instantly. Tonight, out of the farthest country, in an instant of time, you may come home. For in spiritual things are we not akin to the homesick one who longs unavailingly for a little island far away in the west, for the cities of old England and its countryside, for a glimpse of highland hills that they may not see for months or years. God waits, Christ knocks. You may return to Communion with him, now. "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as snow, and though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." The spiritual exile may return, and there is a welcome awaiting him.

Two thoughts very briefly in conclusion. "How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?" It would not be fitting; it would be illogical and impossible. How dare the sinner sing praise of God? How could the captive sing songs in praise of his deliverance? Such songs would be out of place. One said to me, "We gave up saying grace before meals in our family because it seemed out of place to speak to God and then bicker and quarrel, as we all did about the table." "How can we sing the Lord's Song in a strange land?" How can we expect reality in our prayer and praise when we live careless and heedless lives, often lives of selfishness and sin?

Then how could they sing? Those songs reminded them of the great days of their nation's glory. Those songs reminded them of the days of David and Solomon, and of all the glory of Israel. They reminded them above all of their God, of His Temple and the Services of the Sanctuary. Three times in the year they would wend their way toward the Holy City, coming in companies along the roads, singing the sweet songs of Zion, lifting up their eyes to the hills "whence cometh our help." But now they are in cruel captivity. How can they sing?

God's Presence Withdrawn

King John of France, in English captivity, sitting as a guest at a great tourney, was seen to be gloomy and sad. When asked to join in and drive away his grief, he replied in the words of this psalm, "How can I sing in a strange land?" And that is the primary interpretation, no doubt. We all know what it is to be strangers in a strange land, but the psalm means more than that. It has a deeper significance, a more important meaning. The deeper significance is only understood when we realize that sin has resulted in separation. The exile is really unhappy because he is conscious that God's presence is withdrawn. This was the true meaning of their grief,—not the captivity with its attendant hardships, but the thought that God had abandoned His people; Zion, which typified His presence, was far away, and Zion's children were forgotten in far away Babylon.

Is it not as true today? The Christian's cry of desolation can only come, like his Master's, when God's face is hidden. All else can be borne,—hardship, drudgery, difficulties and dangers—even great sorrows. Man can triumph over all that if God be with him. There can be songs from the dungeons of Phillipi or from the side of the grave, if God be with us and His presence felt.

Thank God He has come Whose message was to preach deliverance to the captives and to set them free, Who, having bought our freedom, has promised that He will never leave us comfortless. Now can we sing, wherever we may be, for has He not said, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF JULY 11, 1878

Reuter's telegrams:—A Defensive Commercial Treaty has been signed between England and Turkey, the former country acquiring Cyprus.

The Channel Squadron is at Cyprus.

The Home Minister (Mr. Assheton Cross,) in reply to a question, said that in consequence of Russia retaining Batoum, a defensive treaty of alliance has been concluded between England and Turkey. The Porte cedes Cyprus to England, who will forthwith occupy it, and Sir Garnet Wolseley will administer the island.

The Iron Duke is being prepared with immediate despatch for sea, with the view of relieving the Audacious.

The European Congress have agreed to maintain the Treaty stipulations prohibiting the passage of the Dardanelles by foreign war-vessles and to cede Batoum to Russia, who will make it a free port.

Concerning Greece, a boundary line extending from the mouth of the Salembria to the mouth of the Kalamas is suggested.

The decisions of the European Congress dissatisfy everybody in London. The Conservative journals and the Paris papers have vigorously attacked them.

Japanese Tobacco Leaf For Germany

Tokyo, July 10.

The Monopoly Bureau of the Finance Ministry is planning to export 1,500,000 kilograms of tobacco leaf valued at Y.1,000,000 to Germany, it was announced today. The exports of tobacco leaves will be the first ever to go from Japan to a European country.

Last year, Japan exported to other countries Y.2,500,000 worth of tobacco leaf. This year's exports are expected to reach a value of Y.6,000,000.—Domei.

Lesson Sermon
First Church of Christ Scientist

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon read on July 10 in all Churches of Christ Scientist, throughout the world. Golden Text: 1 Corinthians 5:8. Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson Sermon were the following from the Bible: John 15 "This is my commandment, That ye love one another as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you. John 21. Then Jesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, no, and he said unto them, cast the net on the right side of the ship and ye shall find. They cast therefore and now they were unable to draw it for the multitude of fishes. So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him. Yea Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him. Feed my lambs."

The Lesson Sermon also included the following lines from the Christian Science Textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, "Implicit faith in the Teacher, and all the emotional love we can bestow on him will never alone make us imitators of him. We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which our Master worked and suffered to bestow upon us."

"Our Eucharist is spiritual communion with the one God. Our bread which cometh down from heaven, is Truth. Our cup is the cross. Our wine is the inspiration of Love, the draught our Master drank and commended to his followers."

A Shanghai Letter

By Hester

Since August of last year Shanghai seems to have proceeded upon her way scoring a series of records which has left her previous achievements—high lights though they appeared in their time—looking pale and wan. From bombings, gun-fire and conflagrations we proceeded in due course to the worst floods in half a century, these followed by a terrorism of unprecedented violence; a bright spot was the coolest July 4 celebration in years (but still a record), and we now need only a heat wave beating that of four years ago to top our list of records. It would seem that the poet knew something when he said that disasters come not singly, but as though they watched and waited, then got into mass-formation and made a march upon humanity which caused it positively to hum with anguish.

But we are of a resilient spirit, and we refuse to be downed, so appear to carry on our business very much as usual.

* * *

Outward Appearances

An old resident who has just returned after an absence of seventeen months in Europe has expressed herself as astonished to find us all so perky. "Why," she exclaimed, "from news reports at home, and from Shanghai letters from friends I quite thought that Shanghai was finished and that you were all reduced to taking in one another's washing; that you were sunk in the depths of terrible depression, and had closed down on all luxuries. But no, when I go out among my friends I am entertained as handsomely as formerly."

Of course an old resident ought to have known that we Shanghailanders close down on the luxuries last of all; it is our creed that we can do without the necessities if only we can have the trimmings of life.

Our newly returned though may be fortunate in her social circle hence the apparent affluence, but even so appearances are sometimes deceptive. She might remember that when an individual suddenly loses a good deal of money he does not at once become down-at-heel and out-at-elbow. Then, having been accustomed to a cetain standard of living he does not easily readjust himself to new economics; perhaps he goes on hoping that things will soon be better, and so decides to live on his hump in the meantime.

* * *

On Our Hump

There is something of the quality of the camel about our present state (excepting only that we are still unable to go without a drink for such a long time as that animal), for there can be little doubt that, as a community, we are living on our humps. We are however, incurable optimsts and believe that something will come to fatten business again before our hump is finally dissolved. It would appear that nothing can dampen our spark of hope and of belief in this city. Even the recent great drop in the value of our dollars—a bump such as must have resounded deafeningly in most ears, and have been heard in financial circles afar—gave a new fillip to our peculiar optimism. Quite a number of folk then said, and said it with a sound of cheer: "Now we have reached the bottom, and soon we shall be on the upward bounce." Whether this will prove to be true, or whether the bottom we have touched will have fresh quicksands to engulf us further has yet to be seen.

* * *

Silver Lining

We are a wonderful people for spotting that silver lining to all our clouds. True it is noticeable that those with the golden touch seem to have clearer visions into the silver spheres and are loudest in shouting that the lining is about to show through; quite a number of the less happily placed are concerned mainly in keeping out of the deluge which the black side of our clouds is pouring upon them. Methinks there is a lot of the Mrs. Wiggs philosophy about our good selves; our pigsty is burned and the winter pig lost, but we smile and say, "Thank heaven it wasn't the baby." I suppose that when we are relieved of the baby we are just now holding for somebody or another we shall exclaim at our good luck in having our hands free and not notice that our feet are stuck like those of flies on a flypaper deep into further troubles for our confusion. Shanghai is indeed a wonderful place!

* * *

Price Comparisons

Numbers of housewives are now wishing that they had kept old compradores' and market books so that they may make a comparison between prices of some years ago and those prevailing today. Without data, and only memory to rely upon, most folk are very vague in their statements concerning costs, say some three years ago.

The manager of Dombeys has kindly sent me a copy of his firm's price list published in August, 1935, so now we can know with a little certainty how we stand. Considering that excharge was then around one-and-six, prices of some commodities today are not too bad. Butter is the greatest offender as to price, and since such quantities of this are used in the average Shanghai household it is proving a serious item to many.

Following are prices of the most-used commodities in the two periods under comparison.

	1938	1935
Butter, lb.	1.60—2.65	1.10—1.35
Margarine, lb.	.55— .90	.55
Shortening, lb.	1.50	1.00
Salad oil, qt.	3.00	1.30
Amer. cheese, lb.	1.60	1.00
Chateau cheese, pkt.	1.40	.75
Porrige oats, lb.	.20	.14
" " pkt.	1.05	.60
Rice, per. lb.	.10	.10
Corn starch, pkt.	.45	.30
Coffee, lb.	1.30	1.30
Coffee, American	1.45—2.10	1.20—1.50
Tea, lb.	1.90—5.50	1.90—3.20
Flour, Am. per lb.	.19	.12

Holiday Spirit

One must admit that being a child in Shanghai these days is not much fun as activities for them are so curtailed, but with our children, though some days are worse than others, all those which are holidays are good enough. At last the long vacation has set in, and, judging from the happy crowds of swimmers at the pools of the Columbia Country Club, the Country Club, and the French Club one would say that summer days will have no horrors for our very youngest social set. That these constant swimming mornings make for excellent little champions later on has been amply proved, and Weihaiwei holidays have helped of course. Shanghai children seem to do well in water sports when they compete with their fellows in the home countries. One Shanghai girl of fourteen has proved to be the champion swimmer at present of one of the biggest girls' colleges in England.

* * *

We have often laughed at the idea of Shanghai being a summer holiday resort though it will have to prove such for many of us this year of grace. We learn that this summer it is to be the holiday home of some vacationists who have travelled several thousands of miles to reach us. John, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Marden, arrived in Shanghai last week, travelling from England via Siberia in order to spend the Cambridge long vacation with his parents. Likewise, the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hardman, who are at school in England, are to arrive here early in August. These three young men, though they have been home for some years, all spent their early youth in Shanghai, and it will be interesting to learn what they think of our city under its changed conditions.

* * *

Babies always thrive we are told, but it is only due to the gentle care of the kindly officers of The Cradle that a certain number of poor little waifs have thrived. It is two years since this excellent institution was started and, as everyone knows by now, the crêche is situated at 296 Route Winling. In order to assist the funds the committee is organizing a bridge and mahjongg tea to be held at the Y.M.C.A. on July 18, at 3 p.m. It is hoped that all interested in this splendid work will take tickets or otherwise decide to contribute to the upkeep of a worthy institution. Mrs. Charles Rayden is the chairman.

In Wonderland

Since the hot season seems now properly to have descended upon us and moving around is becoming a tiresome business, many are prone more than usual to the pastime of listening-in to our radio announcers, and may be to reading the newspapers with more than customary attention. This means that we have fallen victims to the reported spates of our various military spokesmen and have had war and political situations brought to our unwilling attention. Owing to the over-cautious and confusing manner in which our spokesmen express themselves, we must confess to being very little wiser, but one feels that these gentlemen volley forth in words in order to disguise what they don't know. We certainly gather that we are in for a long war—probably a second Thirty Years War—but we bear in mind the sayings of warriors of former wars and comfort ourselves with the thought that the first seven years will be the worst (and already one year is over).

It may be due of course to improper understanding on the part of this poor victim but she has read nor heard of nothing in real life which has so reminded her of conversations in "Alice in Wonderland" as the vapourings of our military spokesmen. The only difference is that if you take the trouble to work out the construction of the Wonderland utterances it is possible to arrive at some meaning. Thus the Wonderland Queen to Alice:—

"Never imagine yourself not to be otherwise than what it might appear to others that what you were or might have been was not otherwise than what you have been would have appeared to them to be otherwise." While our spokesmen, military and political say things which to Hester sound like:

The situation in Belle Morte has gone through processes of unfolding revealing conditions previously unsuspected and highly involved, and whereas the one side, rather than what it formerly expected, has achieved that which it had previously despaired of accomplishing, the other side has surprisingly gained unto itself astonishing results from its unplanned and unforeseen strategy true developments from which cannot be anticipated but will, when materialized, bring a termination which will astonish, not only the World (and most especially his wife), but those who have set forth upon and taken part in this campaign of confusion.

The answer will be found in a citrous fruit of elongated proportions, rather out of the sphere that is, and the reward will be the pip for all unconcerned. Which is exactly as it leaves Hester at present.

Note;—Hester has received an article written by a young Shanghai stenographer entitled, "How We Feel" and the subject deals with the reactions of a girl office worker towards office life in Shanghai generally, and some employers in particular. This article arrived too late for inclusion in this week's Woman's Page, but will appear next Monday, and in the meantime, if other office girls wish to air their views (very briefly) as to how they find working conditions here they are invited to write to "Hester," care of this journal.

Hats at Ascot

The two hats seen above were photographed on the final day of the Ascot meeting. Shallow crowns mark them both, but otherwise, except for the striking veil worn by the lady on the right, they are sensible and conservative in design.

Miss Olympe Bradna wears a very comfortable beach frock in a satisfying design of little sailing boats. Flowery prints and the sea somehow don't seem to go so well together.

Spinach As An Ice

Savoury ices are specially easy to make as the absence of sugar helps in freezing process.

Chop spinach very finely and then steam in the usual way.

To four cupfuls of purée add 4 oz. butter, and then beat in 4 oz. of cream cheese, one cupful of whipped cream and the beaten white of one egg.

Season with pepper and salt to taste and freeze in the usual way. Serve on cheese wafer biscuits and sprinkle a very little chopped mint on each just before serving.

If pewter is very dirty and dull, first rub well with Globe polish, to clear off the dirt, then use metal polish. The plate will be in perfect condition. This is a method used by an expert.

Danish Fruit Sweet

This sweet was made for the late Queen Alexandra at Goodwood. It is simple but very delicious.

Required: 2 or 3 lb. fruit in season; sugar to taste; 2 tablespoonsful of rice flour; ½ pint of cream.

Put the fruit in a saucepan with enough sugar to sweeten. Boil gently for half an hour, stirring frequently, and then strain through a muslin. Mix the resulting syrup with the rice flour and return to the saucepan. Let it boil until clear and as thick as cream, then strain into a silver or china soufflé dish. Serve cold with whipped and iced cream.

An Oxford don went one day to fetch his small son, a day boy at a local preparatory school. As he waited, he encountered a classmate of the boy's and, by way of making himself agreeable, inquired what he had been learning that morning. "About Bloody Mary," said the child. Being a historian himself the don suspected tendencious teaching on the Counter-Reformation, and as he walked home with his son, inquired, "And what do you think of Bloody Mary, as I hear you call her?" The child seemed surprised. "Which do you mean, daddy?" he said. "Miss Postlethwaite or Miss Simpkinson?"

Hair On a Holiday

How to Bring It Back Bright and Shining

Now is the time of year which finds a number of women at the seaside and away from the ministrations of their hairdressers. Yet hair must be washed—how shall we get good results from our amateur labours?

Well, first of all don't be in too much of a hurry—spend an hour or so in dealing fairly with your locks.

To begin with, have plenty of hot soft water—if the water is naturally hard, soften it with bran or a spoonful of borax. Have handy, too, some thick clean towels and a clean brush and comb.

For ordinary, not too dry hair a simple shampoo can be beaten up from a tablespoonful of fine soap shavings whipped into a pint of hot softened water with a little Eau de Cologne, and perhaps a drop or two of perfume added. Or you can use equal parts of pure green soap and methylated spirits shaken vigorously together and put into a bottle.

If the hair is very dry, use a tincture of green soap—if you can get it—and massage the head, in addition, with olive or sweet almond oil.

The Washing

Start off on the shampoo by giving your hair a good brush—shake it out and air it. You will find this makes a big difference in getting it lathered up.

Now make your lather and dip your head into it. Take a small stiff nail brush and—dividing the hair from the crown—scrub the lather into the roots. After this give the first rinse.

Make another lather for the second part of the shampoo. This time press and loosen the scalp with your fingers. This stimulates the glands and blood vessels.

During the second rinse continue the massage—rotating the scalp firmly. This keeps the skin loose. A tightened-up skin may be the beginning of thinning hair and eventual baldness.

Rinse Thoroughly

It is worth while to spend some extra time on rinsing in order to avoid the dismal discovery, at the end of your labours, that your hair brush is covered with a fine powder of soap and that your hair is dull instead of sparkling.

Therefore after your second rinse go on still further. Turn the cold water tap full on to your head and wash away every last bit of soap, helping it along with your fingers.

Then, as the finishing touch, fill the basin with warm water and lashings of vinegar—if your hair is dark—or lemon juice if it is fair. It isn't necessary to use imported vinegar—the China or Hongkong-made variety will answer your purpose admirably. And limes can be used instead of lemons, if they are easier to get. Give your hair a thorough last rinsing in this and you can be sure it will come out silky-soft.

Drying and Brushing

Unless your hair is heavy and long, vigorous rubbing is not necessary to dry it. Cover the whole of your head for a few minutes with a thick towel to absorb all loose moisture, and the rest of the drying process can be finished while lying in a long chair with a book, shaking your hair out at intervals.

When the hair is perfectly dry, and not before, brush and comb it. The strokes should begin with pressure on the head and be drawn firmly down to the ends of the hair. The idea of this is to distribute the natural oil which would otherwise stick to the scalp. For this reason well-brushed hair is glossy—neglected hair is dull.

Most people are content to brush their hair downwards only. This will give a superficial gloss for the time, but it is little good to the hair. The hair should be brushed in four distinct ways: (1) in the direction it grows; (2) against its growth; (3) from left to right; (4) from right to left. When you have done this conscientiously you can end up where most people begin and end—with a downward brushing for glossiness sake.

Melon "Cup"

The cup is made of a melon about 7 inches in diameter and 8 inches in height. Filled with diced poultry, meat, ham, mushrooms, etc., it is cooked by steam for several hours, resulting in a delicious soup with the component ingredients in their full flavour. It is a popular Summer dish that goes very well with rice.

Although intended for 8 to 10 persons when served as one of the numerous courses in a full menu, the portion is not too big for a small party if few other dishes are ordered. Those interested in Chinese food should not fail to try this unique dish. Order No. 205, price $3.00 each.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

REFUGEE PROBLEM

The various movements in Europe, and particularly the persecution of the Jews has given rise to a large number of serious questions not the least important of which is how to deal with these unhappy people who would leave the inhospitable lands wherein they now dwell, if only space elsewhere could be found for them. Hence the conference at Evian. It is clear that the rigid control that is being exercised in certain countries—amounting in some cases practically to a denial of the right to earn a living, and the gradual reduction of people to a state of destitution—has created a problem of considerable difficulty, but it is nevertheless imperative that some means should be found to prevent the present day tragedy assuming proportions even greater than they do at present. The Jews in Germany and Austria, as matters are progressing at the moment, have nothing to look forward to but the reestablishment of the Ghetto, with its attendant evils, and the reduction of the inhabitants to a state of abject poverty, and that for no valid reason except that they belong to the race they do. A limited number have managed to find their way into certain hospitable countries, but the conditions in those lands prevent their wholesale admission, or entry to anything like the same degree which has prevailed in earlier cases of disruption in Europe. The flight of the Huguenots into England, and the refugees from the French Revolution took place under considerably different conditions than those prevailing today, and while in those times Britain was able to extend almost unlimited hospitality to those unfortunates, that is no longer possible. The age of machinery had not yet then come, the prevalence of handicrafts ensured general, if not very highly paid employment, and there was always room for the arts and crafts which these émigrés brought with them and which undoubtedly had a refreshing effect upon British industry. The machine age has changed all that. In most countries, as in Great Britain, there is always substantial unemployment, the professions are overcrowded and the admission of immigrant workers and professionals can do nothing but embarrass the various authorities in dealing with the present unhappy state of affairs.

The conference at Evian has commenced none too propitiously. The delegates have come armed with such a formidable mass of documents, and covered by all manner of reservations, that it is difficult to see how any real unanimity can ever result from the discussion, save, perhaps, the general agreement that the accommodation of the refugees from Europe presents a very grave problem. It is a case where the instincts of mercy come into conflict with a full realization of the results of extending the necessary hospitality to people, who, for humanity's sake, should be provided with some sort of refuge from the evils which beset them. An instance of what is meant is found in the case of the large number of Jewish doctors who desire to find a new home in Great Britain. The British medical profession finds itself overcrowded, and with that finding there can be no disagreement. There was considerable opposition against the admission of any Jewish doctors into Great Britain, but it speaks well for the liberality of the medical profession that it agreed to the admission of a limited number on the score of humanity. It was not to set a precedent, but was a move designed to indicate sympathy with their unfortunate brethren in distress. If ever there were a case which so clearly emphasizes the doctrine that charity begins at home, this, unfortunately, is an outstanding example. It is all the more unfortunate because in the ranks of the refugees, whether in medicine or not, there are men whose attainments would be an adornment to any country which could find its way to accepting them, and it is apparent that the enrichment of life, which followed the admission of former refugees into the British Isles, would again result if from the domestic point of view their competition with native born people could be avoided. That is impossible, for they have to live and any scheme calculated to give the necessary relief must envisage the admission of refugees into receiving countries with full knowledge that these people will have to be given the utmost freedom to compete in all markets with their hosts. It is asking a great deal of nations with long unemployment lists to admit further competition which may react against the fortunes of their own nationals, and though the Conference is animated with a desire to do something, the practical difficulties seem almost insuperable.

It is doubtful whether the proposed quota system will provide much relief. Most of the nations represented at the Conference are faced with such unemployment problems that any quotas they might consider would merely touch the fringe of the general proposition involved. Palestine presents no real solution of the problem. If the whole of that country could be devoted to housing the Jews desirous of leaving Europe it is doubtful if it could contain them all. That cannot be contemplated because of the undoubted rights the Arabs possess to sympathetic consideration to claims to reside in the country which they have occupied for long centuries past. It has been suggested that Madagascar might present a solution of the whole difficulty, but again the rights of the native population have to be considered. Thus it appears that any solution which immediately presents itself has about it qualities which must inevitably commit itself to failure. But a solution has to be found. The condemnation of hundreds of thousands of Jews in Europe to what will be little more than a living death, the restrictions placed upon their emigration with their money and goods, the difficulty of finding a harbourage for them all go to make a solution more imperative. There has been a suggestion that in the British colonies room might be found for them, but the racial qualities of the Jew are not apt to qualify him as that type of pioneer which alone would be acceptable. It is true that many Jews can and do work on farms in Europe and are developing Palestine in a most praiseworthy way, but it must be remembered that most of those who have now to be cared for, are of the type which naturally gravitates towards the large cities, and seeks to enter industry which even in the colonies is already overstocked with labour. The outlook is generally gloomy, and it may be years before any really adequate solution can be found. Failure to find one immediately arises from no vice inherent in those seeking for it, but in the general concatenation of circumstances which have arisen out of recent developments. Nevertheless if the Conference can bring about only a slight modification of present hardships it will have achieved something, and for that reason should be persisted with.

Clerics and Politics

Dean Trivett's letter on the subject of "Clerics and Politics" is interesting if not particularly convincing. The Archbishop of York and a certain number of other clergy have thought fit to issue a statement which can be construed as an attack on the policies of the present Government, and is again one of those ventures into politics which are so greatly to be deplored. This journal was not unaware that Dr. Temple is a very learned man, a perusal of the information which the Dean quotes from Crockford clearly proves that and the direction to which his studies have been bent—if it is permitted to say so a highly specialized one, arts, literature and divinity, with a number of honorary degrees embracing other subjects. It is true that Dr. Temple is a member of the House of Lords and of His Majesty's Most Hon. Privy Council, but that indicates no additional qualifications, being positions which he fills because he happens to be Archbishop of York. Dr. Temple is probably as highly a qualified cleric as Lord Nuffield is as a motor magnate, but is it to be believed for one moment that the excellent qualifications of the one renders him able to perform the functions of the other? Dean Trivett makes the allegation that this journal has "not hesitated to arrange the sentences (in the United Press despatch referred to) to suit your own convenience." If he will again peruse the comment in question he will perceive that there has been no arrangement of sentences and that they have been quoted in exactly the same order as they appeared in the original despatch. There is, it is true, in the second quotation a typographical error easily discoverable grammatically, consisting of the dropping of one letter. It must be remembered that with a man in his position there can be no differentiation between Dr. Temple and the Archbishop of York, and it is still the contention of this journal that these adventures into politics by the Established Church are to be regretted, especially at a time like this when high morality has given place to the most sordid of expedients. If it is to be suggested that the British should be sacrificed on the altar of principles this journal most emphatically dissents. There are still domestic problems which confront the Church which require attention, such as slums on Church properties, and the underpayment of clergy, with which its leaders would be better engaged, but these political pontifications do little good and are apt to arouse resentment.

Sheer Nonsense

Japanese correspondents in Shanghai have been running amok over the leading article which appeared in these columns on Saturday entitled "Thursday's Good Work." Commencing with the wholly unwarrantable and incorrect assumption that this organ is the official mouthpiece of the Shanghai Municipal Council, the Japanese correspondents appear to find in that article proof of attempts by the "British-dominated Shanghai Municipal Police to force the French Municipal Authorities to extend closer and more effective co-operation in curbing terrorist outrages in the International Settlement by Chinese operatives allegedly based in the Concession...." The foregoing and the rest of the report is full of inaccuracies. The "North-China Daily News" is British owned and an entirely independent newspaper. It is most certainly not the mouthpiece of the Shanghai Municipal Council nor of any other authority save in so far as certain official announcements appearing in its advertising columns are concerned. There is not, so far as this journal has any knowledge, any attempt on the part of the Shanghai Municipal Police to force the French Municipal Police to take any particular line of action, and in its comment on Saturday this journal extended its compliments alike to both forces on the way in which a day of potential trouble was handled with the greatest efficiency. The statement that the terrorists operate from bases in the French Concession has not been made by this journal. It is a Japanese allegation probably with as much foundation in fact as some of the other hectic stories published by the Japanese press, notably the tale of the two beautiful French women, operating a beauty parlour, which was a meeting place of Chinese spies. That the Japanese Press itself subsequently admitted to be wrong. It is true that this newspaper suggested that Chinese found in unlawful possession of arms should be handed over to the Japanese authorities. That was not inspired by the Shanghai Municipal Council, nor was there, as the Japanese reports suggest, any reference to the Chinese law courts. Domei was perfectly correct in bringing these reports back to Shanghai, though perhaps it has done the Japanese journalists responsible for this farrago of nonsense an ill turn. It is suggested that they should be recalled and others less prone to "language difficulties" should be sent out to take their place, or perhaps those better able to suppress fantasy in favour of fact.

NATURE NOTES

All the different kinds of cicada are now in full song, and, as I sit on my porch looking into my sunlit garden, I can detect the calls of at least four of these. Most noticeable, perhaps, is the pulsating song of the big black cicada, the strident beats of which fill the air for periods of half a minute to a minute at a time, cease for a while, and then start again. Incidentally, it may here be recorded that I first heard this species this year on July 6, which was the first hot day this month. It was in a friend's garden. I did not hear it in my own garden till late in the afternoon of July 8. In view of the fact that some of these insects had already emerged from the ground two or three days prior to the date on which they were first heard, I am inclined to the opinion that it is not the advent of the first hot day in July that makes the big black cicada emerge from the ground, since he has already done so, but that it requires a really hot day to make him start singing. Apparently what happens is that the nymphs of this cicada begin coming out of the ground and passing through their wonderful transformation into the imagoes or perfect insects towards the very end of June or early in July, but they do not begin their love-song till the temperature is sufficiently high to stimulate into activity whatever gland secretion or hormone it is that rouses their passions. Hence their appearance is not noticed till the first really hot day of the summer, which, as previously noted, very frequently is July 4. The same sequence of events probably takes place in connection with the other species of cicada found in this area, but on different series of dates, seemingly rather earlier than those on which the black cicadas appear. Before leaving the subject of cicadas, or scissor-grinders, as they are also called, a few words may be said as to how these insects make the extraordinary noise for which they are famous. In the males, on the under-side of the body, are two cavities, or chambers, side by side. These are covered by two large shields or plates called "opercula." Inside each of these chambers is a "timpal" or drum, which is a circular or oval membrane stretched taut. This membrane can be vibrated by muscles attached to its edge, and, when so vibrated, it emits a sound, which, apparently, is reflected from another larger circular membrane called the "mirror" and so is somewhat intensified. The cavities in which these organs are found and the plates or opercula covering them no doubt act as sounding-boxes and sounding-boards respectively, which further increase the sound so that it issues from the insect in considerable volume. It may be suggested that in this marvellous apparatus of the cicada Nature anticipated the microphones of the telephone, the phonograph and the dictaphone by a hundred million years or so, for the cicadas belong to an extremely ancient order of insects, and we have no reason to suppose that they had not developed their vocal powers at a very early period in their history.—A. Kiukiang Bombarded By Japanese Ships

Chinese Communique Claims Two of Them Sunk by Aeroplanes; Nanchang, New Objective of Military Operations

Hankow, July 10.

THREE Japanese warships steamed up river this morning and shelled Kiukiang, whereupon Chinese bombing 'planes immediately took off and heavily bombed the Japanese ships, sinking two of them, according to Chinese military headquarters today. The third warship steamed down river, thus easing the situation at Kiukiang, it was stated. The British river gunboat Cockchafer and the U.S.S. Monocacy steamed three miles up river, above Kiukiang, in order to avoid the shelling and bombing. Squadrons of Chinese bombing 'planes hopped off at dawn this morning for Anking to bomb a concentration of Japanese warships there. According to Chinese reports, one of the vessels was sunk and another badly damaged.

Chinese and Japanese troops fighting on the south bank of the Yangtze River have now shifted in the direction of Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi Province, with the Japanese forces at Hukow pushing towards the south-east, according to Chinese despatches.

The Chinese and Japanese forces east of Kiukiang are reported to be opposing each other in the vicinity of Kutang, where a small river joins Poyang Lake with the Yangtze River.

After a silence lasting several weeks, the air raid alarm was sounded once again this morning at 9.30 o'clock. There was no cause for anxiety among residents of Hankow, however, as it turned out to be a false alarm.

One unconfirmed report states that six Japanese aeroplanes were sighted this morning on their way to Hankow, but turned back. The "All-clear" signal was sounded half an hour after the alarm signal screeched forth.

Squadrons of Chinese bombers took off this morning to bomb the Japanese aerodrome, and also warship concentrations, in the vicinity of Anking. The results of the morning's bombings are not yet available.—Reuter.

Japanese Planes Range Widely

Leading the advance of Japanese Navy and Army forces from Hukow toward Hankow, Japanese naval aircraft Saturday flew past Kiukiang far up-river and severely bombed Chinese shore fortifications near Tienkiachen, about 60 kilometres above Kiukiang.

While inflicting heavy losses on the Chinese positions along the Yangtze, the naval air raiders also co-operated with the Army forces by bombing Chinese troops, a Japanese China Seas Fleet communique stated at noon yesterday.

A naval flying squadron commanded by Lieutenant Mihara moved through thick banks of clouds and raided the Chinese airdrome at Hengyang in Hunan Province. About a dozen Chinese planes of varying sizes were grounded on the air field. Four were destroyed and two damaged, the communique claimed. The raiders were attacked by Chinese anti-aircraft batteries. All the Japanese planes which participated in the attack on Hengyang returned safely to their base.

A large number of naval aircraft commanded by Lieut. Commander Takahashi and Lieut. Nakajima attacked the old and new aerodromes in Nanchang. No Chinese planes were seen either on the ground or in the air. The hangars and repair factories in the new aerodrome were heavily bombed. Five buildings at the air field were set on fire, the communique said. Many direct hits were scored on the old aerodrome also, where hangars and runways were badly damaged, the communique concluded.

Canton Hankow Railway Bombed

Describing it as a new threat to the continued operation of the Canton-Hankow railway, already severely damaged by bombing on frequent occasions in South China, a Japanese Army spokesman yesterday announced that the northern portion of the line had been bombed on Saturday by Japanese Army aircraft. Four freight cars and one passenger car of a north-bound train had been hit and destroyed, he claimed.

The Army air force, the spokesman further revealed, had also been active in the vicinity of Nanking, where about 600 guerillas were attacked east of Tangsuichen, 25 kilometers east of the former Chinese capital. Serious losses were inflicted upon the Chinese, who possessed trench mortars, he claimed. The operation was carried out in conjunction with surface forces, the spokesman added.

Japanese Army forces operating on the southern bank of the Yangtze above Anking, were engaged in an attack on Chinese forces near Liussukiao, east of Hukow. Chinese troops were also active near Pengtseh and in the area between Niangniangmiao and Hukow.

These Chinese activities, carried out by bodies of troops numbering at times. 1,000 men, had been revived recently, after the Chinese had hastily retired in the face of a rapid Japanese advance along the southern bank of the Yangtze after a landing at Siangkow on June 24. The Japanese operation culminated in the occupation of Hukow on July 4.

More Trouble in Palestine

Bomb Thrown at Jewish Bus Leaving Haifa; 100 Leaders Under Arrest

Haifa, July 10.

Following 24 hours of comparative quiet, Haifa was again the scene of outrages today and the atmosphere is now tense. Eight occupants of a Jewish bus were injured when a bomb exploded inside the vehicle as it was leaving Haifa. A large section of the King's Way, the main road of the town, was cordoned off by marines in steel helmets in order to prevent an angry mob from entering the Jewish quarter, following the harmless explosion of a bomb near the Arab market. A number of cases of Arabs stoning and beating Jews were reported, while, during an engagement with an armed gang at Ramat Yochana, near Haifa, two Jewish supernumerary police were injured.—Reuter.

Cairo, July 10.

The 1st Essex and the 1st Irish Guards, the two infantry battalions ordered to Palestine as part of the reinforcements to be despatched there, left today, and tomorrow the Irish Guards will proceed to Nablus, a town of 33 miles from Jerusalem.—Reuter.

Jewish Leaders Arrested

Jerusalem, July 10.

British troops today arrested more than 100 Jewish extremist leaders throughout Palestine in an effort to prevent Arabs from taking retaliatory measures in reprisal for terrorism which British officials blamed on the Zion Revisionist Organization.

Reinforced British troops cleared the streets of Jerusalem following additional stabbings and threats of terrorism. Pedestrians were roughly searched for arms and driven off the streets as virtual martial law was enforced. Communist circulars were widely distributed urging the Arabs to take action against the "Jew Fascist Murderers." The Arab Nationalists attempted to check their followers, but it was feared the inflamed Arabs would retaliate with new terrorism against innocent Jews.

Estimated casualties in Palestine during the past week as a result of Arab-Jew terrorism: 52 Arabs killed, 12 Jews killed, 145 Arabs wounded, 18 Jews wounded.

Two Jews were stabbed today on the Jaffa-Telaviv border, another was stabbed at Haifa and three were shot in Tiberias.

British reinforcements still were en route to Shefram, near Haifa, where an armed band of extremists was besieging the local police garrison.—United Press.

"A Miserable Failure"

London, July 10.

"Let us be honest with ourselves and admit that we have made a miserable failure of our task in Palestine," the "Sunday Times" writes today in a critical article dealing with the present disturbances in the Holy Land.

"With a friendly Turkey and a new Palestine such as the Jews have proved they could set up, peace in the East was assured. And we might have presided over one of the most beneficial enterprises of imperial justice ever to have made this country famous and mankind grateful.

"Had we taken the chance offered, there need have been no Conference at Evian (to deal with the problem of political refugees). The complete answer to the problem of persecution was in our hands. But we frittered away the greatest opportunity we ever had.

"From the point of view of the British Government, the gravity of the renewed Arab-Jew disturbances in Palestine is constituted by the fact that they necessarily postpone the opportunity for a political settlement of whatever kind."

The "Sunday Times" concludes. "The fault for what has happened lies with us. We must make up our minds as to what it is right to do,—and do it quickly."—Havas.

Refugee Headquarters In Paris

Conference Decides to form World Organization

Evian, July 10.

At a further meeting yesterday of the International Conference on the problem of political refugees, it was unanimously agreed to establish an international organization at Paris for the purpose of coordinating future work on behalf of immigrants. The Conference was then adjourned until July 11.—Reuter.

Roosevelt's Appeal Acceptable

Evian, France, July 9.

Latin American republics responding to President Roosevelt's appeal, announced their readiness today to co-operate in the problem of sheltering refugees from Germany and Austria.—United Press.

Alexandra Day Record

London, July 10.

Street collections on behalf of hospitals and charities for the sick, in memory of Queen Alexandra, which were made on Alexandra Day, amounted to about £54,000. This is the highest total collected on such an occasion since 1931.—Wireless through Reuter.

All German Advisers Leaving

Hongkong, July 10.

A spokesman for the Germans formerly advisers to the Chinese Government said today that only the "active officials" had actually been recalled by Germany whereas the majority of the technical advisers were leaving of their own free will in anticipation of impaired relations with the Chinese because of the absence of the leading advisers.

The spokesman said that few technical advisers were remaining in China. He said the advisers now in Hongkong would make leisurely trips home by way of the United States or Bali or other routes. He emphasized, however, that all were definitely returning to Germany after a holiday.—United Press.

Revision of Neutrality Act Needed

Sen. Pittman on Result Of Year's Hostilities

Washington, July 10.

A year's warfare in China has demonstrated that the Roosevelt administration must be granted wider latitude in its economic and commercial dealings with China and Japan—in other words the revision of the Neutrality Act.

This statement was made yesterday by Senator Key Pittman, President of the Senate.

"I beileve that the Administration will present to Congress suggestions for discrimination, and also that, speaking generally, Congress is considering the necessity of such action," he said.

"I think this year of warfare in China has aroused on the part of the American public a serious prejudice against the Japanese Government, and a growing desire to aid China," he declared.

As long as the Neutrality Act remained unchanged, Senator Pittman concluded, Japanese purchases of products from the United States would continue to increase, and those of China decrease, because the Japanese blockade of China ports was making it increasingly difficult for China to import goods from America.—Reuter.

Steps to End China War

Copenhagen, July 10.

A resolution exhorting member states to consider what measures should be taken to observe their obligations towards the covenant of the League of Nations, and to accomplish the end of the war in China was passed here yesterday at a meeting of the International Congress of League of Nations Societies.

The resolution also urged increased efforts towards stopping purchases of Japanese products.

A further resolution on the subject of the aerial bombings of civilian populations recommended that the League convoke a congress with a view to finding a means to avert this peril, and to organizing sanctions against the states "violating the laws of humanity."—Reuter.

French Air Defences Strengthened

Precautions Against New Frontier Raids

Paris, July 10.

The National Defence Ministry has issued a statement which stresses that the air defence organization in the southern French border region, particularly in the eastern Pyrenean sector, has not been weakened as had been asserted by a certain section of the French press.

The statement points out that merely some batteries with an obsolete type of anti-aircraft gun had been replaced by batteries equipped with the latest type of gun. The defence system had therefore not been weakened but strengthened as protection against any possible future raid by Spanish planes violating the French frontier.—Trans-Ocean.

Holland Sends Serums To Canton

Medical Supplies Forwarded By Aeroplane

Amsterdam, July 10.

The Chinese Assistance Committee of Holland yesterday despatched four large cases of valuable serums against typhoid, cholera and tetanus by air to Singapore, from where they will be forwarded to Canton.

The departure of the plant was made the occasion for a celebration and demonstration by the Chinese colony with the Chinese Consul-General being present. Two further cases of medical supplies have been sent by ship to China.—Trans-Ocean.

120 Spend School Year in Last Ten Years

London, July 10.

In the ten years since the establishment by the English-speaking Union of reciprocal British and American schoolboy scholarships, 120 British boys have spent a school year in the United States, it is announced.

Last year, 17 boys from British public schools went across the Atlantic to American schools, while 13 American scholars spent three terms at leading English public schools.—Wireless through Reuter.

Murderer at Liberty

Eger, July 10.

The German Communist Foerster, who escaped with several companions from a German concentration camp several weeks ago after having murdered a member of the special guards and who crossed the frontier into Czechoslovakia, is now at liberty in that country according to a statement in the "Chebske Listy" yesterday evening.

Foerster was arrested by Czechoslovakian frontier guards after crossing the border but was released after an investigation although the German authorities made an immediate demand for his extradition.—Trans-Ocean.

Pacific Junk Voyage

Tokyo, July 10.

Dr. E. Allen Peterson, Los Angeles physician, and his Japanese wife, will sail out on the Pacific from Yokohama on July 14 in an eight-ton junk with San Francisco as their goal.

Before sailing Dr. Peterson will broadcast greetings to the United States from Station JOAK here for 10 minutes starting at 6.15 on July 14.

The adventurers sailed their small craft from Shanghai to Yokohama in one month. They were accompanied by two Russians.—Domei.

Japan's Top-Heavy Warships Causing Concern

British Naval Expert Says Country Worried Over Instability; Huge Gyroscopes Installed

London, July 10.

HEADED "Japan's Top-heavy Warships," the main article on the chief news page of today's "Sunday Times," by Lieut.-Comm. Kenneth Edwards, the journal's naval correspondent, states:—"I understand from well-informed circles that Japan is becoming greatly concerned at the unseaworthiness and instability of many of the new vessels being completed for the Japanese Navy. Japanese naval designers, it would appear, are losing sight of the all-important factor of seaworthiness in their desire to mount more guns than are carried by equivalent ships of other navies."

The "Sunday Times" correspondent adds:—"The first indication of this tendency was when the Japanese torpedo boat Tomoduru capsized during manoevres fwo years ago." He states that the result of this accident was that the whole class of six more of these ships was modified, and the weight of their armament reduced.

Referring to cruisers of the Mogami class, which were laid down in 1934, he states that they caused some stir throughout the world, and "despite the close secrecy which shrouds Japanese naval affairs, it is now known that the ships of the Mogami class were far from being successful, as all of these six ships failed to join the fleet at the time when it was originally intended.

Main Turrets Removed

"Some of them have been delayed at the dockyards for more than a year, while modifications have been carried out. These modifications have been concerned with the stability of the ships, and I understand that the Japanese have been forced to remove one of the main armament gun turrets to give them sufficient stability.

"Thus the main armament of these ships had to be cut down from fifteen 6.1 inch guns to twelve. No amount of modification after construction, however, can make these ships so good as they might have been if properly designed in the first place," Commander Edwards states.

Because of the great difficulties and the many failures which the Japanese Navy is experiencing over the stability of its ships, Commander Edwards goes on to say, large experiments are being carried out with gyro-stabilizers.

"I understand that Japan is fitting gyro-stabilizers to her two new aircraft carriers Hiryn and Soryu.... Japan is determined to stabilize these ships by artificial means," he states. "Japanese engineers are of the opinion that the failures with gyro-stabilizers have been due to the use of gyroscopes of too little weight.

Huge Gyro-Stabilizers

"They are reported to have come to the conclusion that in efficient gyro-stabilizer must have a weight of at least three per cent. of the total displacement of the ship. This means that the gyroscopes to be fitted to the Hiryu and Soryu will be more than 300 tons in weight. Naturally, this will impose a tremendous strain on the ships.

"Imagine a 10,000 ton ship trying to roll under the influence of the long Pacific seas, but held rigid by a 300 ton gyroscope in the hull. Many British engineers are of the opinion that no efficient hull capable of withstanding such an internal strain could be bulit.

"It is impossible to assess accurately the power of the Japanese Navy, but British naval circles consider that it can never be the force desires it to be until Japanese warship designers show a fuller appreciation of the fact that seaworthiness is the first requirement of any vessel." Commander Edwards concludes.—Reuter.

Panay Commander Still Suffering

Lt.-Cmdr. Hughes Sails to Enter San Diego Hospital; Further Treatment Needed

San Francisco, July 9.

Lieut.-Commander J. J. Hughes, Commander of the ill-fated American gunboat U.S.S. Panay, sailed from here today for San Diego where he will enter a Navy hospital for further treatment of wounds suffered when Japanese planes sank the Panay near Wuhu last December.

During the past several days, the Panay commander has been under observation in the Mare Island hospital where it was believed he would have to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Navy physicians today decided that the operation would not be necessary at least until Commander Hughes had recovered from wounds suffered in the Panay bombing.

Commander Hughes' report to the Navy Department following the Japanese attack on the Panay said the Japanese planes had bombed and machine-gunned the ship from altitudes at which the American flags displayed on the gunboat could easily have been seen.

The former Panay commander sailed for San Diego aboard the Navy Transport Henderson. He recently was decorated by the Government for his heroism in the Panay incident.—United Press.

Mexican Arms Patrol

San Antonio, Texas, July 10.

Detachments of Mexican troops are now standing guard at various points along that part of the frontier between Mexico and the United States, stretching from Matambon to Nuevo Laredo. These soldiers are posted to check the contraband of arms into Mexico and also the inflow of recruits to the aid of General Saturnino Cedillo, rebel leader who recently attempted an unsuccessful uprising in San Luis Potosi province.—Havas.

American Aeroplane Ready For Flight Around The World

Last Minute Trouble Causes Delay But Everything Prepared for Record Globe-Girdling Trip

New York, July 10.

If atmospheric conditions were favourable, the New York World Fair was to take off from the Floyd-Bennett airport on its flight to Paris between 3 and 5 o'clock this morning. Howard Hughes and his four companions, who are attempting a record globe-girdling flight, are trying to cross the Atlantic Ocean in 22 hours to set a new mark for this leg of their flight, too.

The aeroplane was ready last evening to take off on its first leg to Paris. A slight delay occurred at eleventh hour, however, when the motors did not tick over quite to the satisfaction of the departing airmen. But repairs were swiftly carried out and the engines are again regulated, Lieutenant Thomas Thurlow, one of the navigators accompanying Mr. Hughes, told a Havas correspondent.

Making for Paris first, the New York World Fair will proceed to Moscow and will then head back for the United States via Irkutsk and the Fairbanks Straits, above the Behring Sea.

Mr. Hughes will be accompanied by his crew of four men; navigators Harry Connor and Lieutenant Thomas Thurlow, Radio operator Richard Stoddart and mechanic Ed Lund. The craft in which the ambitious flight will be attempted has been baptised the "New York World Fair." It is a Lockheed 14 with two engines, each a 1100-horsepower Wright Cyclone. The latest technical apparatus is included aboard this 'plane, among the most modern fittings being an automatic pilot which cannot be influenced by adverse magnetic currents, and a complicated radio outfit which will permit the airmen to maintain constant contacts with Europe and the United States.

Every half-hour, the radio operator will get in touch with New York to give his position and to receive meteorological bulletins. Furthermore, 15 trans-Atlantic shipping companies have promised the globe-girdling airmen that their vessels will be ready to maintain contacts.

The New York World Fair will have a weight of about 12 tons gross when it takes off. It will carry 6,555 litres of gasoline and 454 litres of oil. The 'plane will then have a range of more than 7,000 kilometres. Mr. Hughes hopes to accomplish his flight at an altitude of between 10,000 and 13,500 feet.—Havas.

Rheims Cathedral Restored

Brilliant Ceremony Marks Inauguration; Damages Repaired

Rheims, July 10.

One of the most impressive ceremonies to take place in France during the last years, was witnessed here today as the President of the Republic, M. Albert Lebrun, accompanied by Mgr. Suhard. Archbishop of Rheims and Special Papal Legate for the occasion, solemnly inaugurated the cathedral here, thrown open to the faithful and to lovers of art for the first time in 25 years.

It will be recalled that the Cathedral, one of the jewels of Medieval art, was heavily damaged during the great War and more than 20 years have been necessary to complete the restoration work and consolidate the shaken edifice.

M. Robert Marchandeau, Minister of Finance and concurrently Senator and Mayor of Rheims, M. Jean Zay, Minister of Public Education, Prince Louis II of Monaco, many members of the Diplomatic Corps and more than twenty thousand pilgrims attended the ceremony.

Mgr. Valerio Valeri, the Pope's Nuncio in Paris, headed the religious delegation which comprised seven Cardinals, wearing the "Capa Magna" of red velvet with a queue 12 feet long and more than 50 bishops and archbishops.

The Papal Legate, Mgr. Suhard addressed the crowd massed on the square before the Church and made an impressive speech in which he exalted the traditions of France which throughout many political vicissitudes, has never forgotten that she is the eldest daughter of the Church and has always appeared as a champion of liberty and of peace."

Finally, the official cortege entered the Church where a Pontifical mass was celebrated, followed by the Pope's personal blessing transmitted by wireless from Castel-Gandolfo.—Havas.

Several Important Discoveries

Rheims, July 9.

The Cardinal blessed, in a solemn ceremony this evening, the organs on which a commemorative concert was rendered. These organs are new, too, as are a great many sculptural works which could not be restored even by the famous French architect, Henri Denen. The latter was engaged in the task of restoring the Cathedral to its former glory for the last 20 years. In this period of time, while construction works were going on, several archaeological discoveries were made, among the most notable being that of a fifth century crypt.

Celebrations this evening consisted of the presentation of a miracle-play, "Adam and Eve," on the floodlit space before the Cathedral. This presentation was the first to be given here since the fifteenth century.—Havas.

Oil Deal May Lead to Conflict

Sales to Fascist States Arouses Labour Ire

Washington, July 10.

A political conflict between President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico and Senor Lombardo Toledano, Head of the Mexican Worker's Trade-Unions, is regarded as inevitable by diplomatic observers. This conflict will arise from the sale of oil to Germany, these same politicians assert.

Senor Toledano, when in Washington recently, declared Mexico would not sell any oil to Fascist countries, and at the same time he condemned the barter system, claiming the latter was the best means by which Fascists could penetrate into South America.

President Cardenas, however, for financial reasons, contracted for a sale of about $10,000,000 worth of oil to the Reich. Reports from Mexico stress particularly allegations that the oil is from expropriated properties.—Havas.

Restrictions on Jews Increased

New German Decree Further Cripples Activities

Berlin, July 9.

The Government issued a decree today putting severe restrictions on professional and business activities of Jews.

Under the decree, Jews or Jewish corporations are forbidden to engage in the following activities: Watchman, Private detective, credit information, Real estate loan, Real estate brokerage, Administration of real estate, marriage brokerage, Tourist guide.

Violations will be punishable by imprisonment.—United Press.

President Defends Policy

Mr. Roosevelt Says U.S. Wants Government with A Soul; Oklahoma Candidate Endorsed

Oklahoma City, July 9.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt restated his doctrine of political liberalism before a huge throng of Oklahomans at the Fair Grounds here today and endorsed Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma for re-election to the Senate. The President mentioned Senator Thomas by name on several occasions, referring to him as "my old friend", which political observers regarded as White House approval of "Senator Thomas' campaign for re-election. The President warned Oklahoma voters against office seekers "who make impossible promises and espouse impossible platforms".

The President also recalled his reference to liberalism during his recent fireside chat with the nation by radio. He admonished the audience to "look beyond the surface of things into men's heart".

"America requires a Government of constant progress along liberal lines," the President said. "America requires that this progress be sane and honest. America calls for a Government with a soul."

The President's tour through Oklahoma and Arkansas have all the aspects of a campaign trip, political observers pointed out today. Large crowds have appeared at every station and crossroad to greet the President who has usually responded with a brief address.

Following his address at the Fair Grounds here today the President left for Fort Worth, Texas, where he will spend the week-end at the ranch of his son, Mr. Elliott Roosevelt.

An Incident

Woody Hockaday, eccentric haunter of Government officials and other public personalities, turned up here again today with another of his unusual demonstrations coincident with the arrival of President Roosevelt. As usual, Hockaday received a beating and cursing from the crowd and was jailed.

Secret Service agents guarding the President overpowered Hockaday as he attempted to make a dash for the President's car. He was within eight feet of the President's car when he finally was stopped. Some spectators said he was carrying a blackjack, but police later said Hockaday merely "wanted to shine the President's shoes".

Hockaday was beaten by police and National Guardsmen as he was hauled away to jail. At the time it was thought he had attempted to assassinate the President. Women in the crowd shouted curses at Hockaday as he was escorted to a nearby patrol wagon.

Hockaday has figured in numerous escapades, all harmless but troublesome to bodyguards responsible for the safety of high public officials. On one occasion Hockaday walked into the office of the Secretary of War, Mr. Harry Woodring, and showered him with chicken feathers before police caught him. He also showered the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, famous "radio priest", with feathers.

Hockaday usually draws brief jail terms, disappears after serving his sentence, only to turn up at some public function with another of his eccentric performances.

The President took no notice of the incident but continued to wave his hat and smile at the crowd. Firemen assisted in holding back bystanders who attempted to mob Hockaday.—United Press.

Mr. McNutt's Candidacy

Indianapolis, July 9.

The Indiana campaign to nominate Mr. Paul V. McNutt, U.S. High Commissioner for the Philippines, as next Democratic candidate for the Presidency was strengthened here today when the state Democratic organization headed an old "wound" which split the state committee last year.

The new united committee indicated it would throw its full strength behind Mr. McNutt's Presidential ambitions. Mr. Frank McHale, National Democratic Committeeman, today suggested that the party's advisory and resolutions committee include a plank in its platform endorsing Mr. McNutt for the Presidency. There was little doubt that the committee would adopt the resolution.

The year-old breach in the state committee ranks was reported ended today after Senator Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana, had intervened. Mr. McNutt also was reported to have urged reconciliation in a telephone call from Manila.

Mr. McNutt was reported anxious to see the Indiana Democratic Party present the strongest possible front in the forthcoming off-year elections, knowing that a Republican victory in Indiana in 1938 would mean sudden death to his Presidential ambitions in 1940.—United Press.

Rickshaws Will Be Retained

Gasoline Economies Save Them in Manchoukuo

Mukden, July 10.

Belying predictions of its early extinction, the rickshaw in Manchoukuo has received a new lease of life as the result of an appeal by the Government to all car-owners to exercise the strictest economy in the use of gasoline.

In making the appeal the authorities at Hsinking suggested that a considerable saving in the consumption of gasoline could be made by using a mixture of alcohol and gasoline.

The prescription, known as "knock knock" mixture, has not found favour with owners of the more expensive type of cars, and consequently the demand for leg-powered vehicles has increased.

At the same time, employees of most Government bureaux and the various municipalities throughout the country, deciding to set a good example, have either sold or garaged their cars and taken to rickshaws.—Reuter.

German Migration Decree

Berlin, July 10.

In the interests of Germany's food supply, Field-Marshal Hermann Goering, as Commissioner of the Four-year Plan, has issued a decree to combat the drift of the rural population to the big cities. A marriage allowance is one of a number of new facilities to be accorded to the rural population.—Reuter

Election Results Kept in Mind

Observers Say President Is Attempting to Regroup Political Forces

Washington, July 9.

The importance of President Roosevelt's tour through the United States in its bearing on the November elections is generally recognized here.

The polling will be considerably facilitated, observers say, if the President succeeds in convincing all Democrats, including those who have been up to the present, against the New Deal programme, that the whole Party should rally behind him in casting the votes which will decide the new House of Representatives and which will affect one-third of the Senate.

In effect, President Roosevelt will try to regroup the political forces of this country independently of the traditional party trends, and he will try to secure the support of all Liberals for his policy, it is understood. By Liberals are meant those politicians who advocate Governmental intervention to remedy the new difficulties facing the world today.

In the course of his tour, the President will try to strengthen the fidelity of the pro-Government elements in the States of Ohio, Kentucky, Georgia, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and California, observers declare.

Regrouping of Forces

He will try to eliminate from the November polls those candidates who, though on the Democratic ticket, are opposed to the "liberal" views expressed by himself in his speech of June 25.

In that address, the President stated the traditional system of having two political parties, which offer the electors programmes which are almost identical, no longer meets the exigencies of a modern world. He advocated the regrouping of the United States' political forces in two classes, following concepts of Liberalism and Conservatism.

It is noted by observers that the Liberals would be those who think that present world conditions demand new solutions and who grant the Government the right to apply the appropriate corrective measures. The Conservatives would include those who "want to leave to philanthropists and private initiative the task of solving practically all problems."

President Roosevelt would like to rally all the Liberals around the Democratic Party, while the Conservatives should comprise the Republican group, authorised circles declare. If he succeeds, the political situation will be clarified to a great extent, and advantageously to the Democrats.

Should the President fail in his objectives, observers conclude, the impending November elections will be held as of old, with the same confusion as in past years, prevailing at the polls.—Havas.

New Formation Flight Record

R.A.F.'s 213 M.P.H. to Le Bourget

London, July 10.

Eighteen R.A.F. machines, which are to take part in the French air display at Villa Coublay today, left Northolt aerodrome, Middlesex, yesterday evening, and flew to Le Bourget.

They covered the distance of 235 miles in 66 minutes—at an average speed of 213 miles per hour—in adverse weather conditions, setting up a record for a formation flight to Le Bourget.

The machines consisted of 11 Hawker Hurricanes, the Air Force's fastest fighters, four Gloster Gladiators, two Avro Ansons and one Valentia troop carrier.—Wireless through Reuter.

No Truth in China Flour Loan

Rumours Fail to Find Any Confirmation in U.S.

Washington, July 9.

Reports that the United States was planning a flour loan to China could not be confirmed in Government circles here today.

The State Department, Department of Agriculture, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Export and Import Bank, and the Commodities Credit Corporation all said they were not aware that any flour loan to China was being considered. They said they did not believe consideration of such a loan was even imminent.

Mr. Herbert Feis, economic adviser to the State Department, said he knew nothing of the rumoured plan to make a flour loan to China.—United Press.

Queen Marie Reported Seriously Ill

Bucharest, July 9.

Queen Marie of Rumania has suffered a relapse following earlier reports that her condition had improved, it was learned here today.

Earlier reports said she intended to return home soon, but her condition became worse Thursday night when she suffered a stomach hemorrhage. Her condition was understood to be serious, but she was believed to be in no immediate danger of her life.

King Carol today was reported planning to fly to her sanitarium near Dresden.—United Press.

In the Russian Colony

By "Stroy"

The blows struck at commerce by the present war are being felt by Russian merchants no less keenly—if not more so—than by other commercial interests in this country. For a year now trade has declined appreciably, the market has become unstabilized, the inflow of revenue has with the commencement of the sultry summer months diminished, difficulties of import and export have increased and communications with the hinterland are in a state that promises a long continuance of the present disruption. And most disconcerting of all is the confusion of the exchange. The foregoing is a rough indication of the present condition of trade; the condition of industry is no better—if not worse.

Even old-established and well-backed Russian concerns with a definite clientele and a once fully balanced and stable budget must today rebuild on a new basis. But how? That is the question. Many speak of reducing overhead, but this step is often nothing more than a palliative. If business is radically bad, cuts in salaries and purges in the staff can postpone the sad though in many cases inevitable end, but can never do away with it.

Already Russian businessmen who have seen much during the Russian revolution and civil war, have graduated from the stern school of commercial competition in Harbin and have for many years carried on business in Shanghai—and who have therefore garnered no small measure of experience—foresee that when with the commencement of autumn the wheels of commerce will once again start to turn, the circulation of capital will suffer a reduction of 75 per cent. or even 80 per cent. on last year.

Whereas foreign businessmen have their reserve funds, their credit, their banks and protection from their governments, Russians who are left literally to their own resources realize full well that no one except themselves will render them any help whatsoever. This, however, does not necessitate a loss of heart. "We must weather this crisis," they tell themselves. "We must somehow muddle through the summer, which this year may be the most difficult ever."

Credit Difficulties

The problem that in importance and urgency eclipses all others is that of credit. Who if not banks should come to the aid of businessmen in times of difficulty? Yet local banks have all but closed their doors to Russian businessmen, holding back and refusing to extend credit. The latter justly complain against the banks' attitude towards them, pointing out that the forced liquidation and even bankruptcy of Russian firms will result in a drastic reduction of circulation in the market—be it only the Russian market—and consequent losses to the banks themselves. And the last twenty years have given birth to many Russian firms which are fully robust and solid and even of use to the community, and whose passing would be a distinct loss not only to the colony but perhaps to the whole of business Shanghai. The indifferent attitude of the banks is driving businessmen into the arms of moneylenders. And under existing conditions they are often forced to seek the help of these moneylenders in order to save their firms, in spite of the fact that the latter often bleed them white—or, as they say in Russian, "peal off thirty-three skins."

Public attention has been drawn on to cases investigated in court of Russian youths who smoke opium, use cocaine and particularly fall victim to the so-called "red pills." The latter are cheaper than other forms of drugs and therefore more accessible to the poor creatures who woo forgetfulness from their cares—be it only for a moment—and completely forget the inevitable consequences and the merciless harm they are inflicting upon themselves. The most disquieting angle to the whole affair is the fact that in line with adults, this poison is often taken by school children. It would be fatuous to presume that the drugs are circulated only among street waifs and inmates of Chinese sleeping-houses; often the insidious power of these "red pills" claims its victims among respected and well-to-do families.

Leaving Shanghai

Nearly every day brings news of some member of the Russian colony leaving for Australia, the United States, Canada or the countries of South America. So far, it is true, they are leaving one by one, but their number is gradually increasing. That employee of some department of the Municipal Council, who has just received his superannuation fund after long years of service, that businessman who all his lifetime laid up capital for a rainy day, that architect or contractor who believes that two or three years will have to pass before conditions enjoyed by Shanghai up to the August of 1937 will return—all these leave. And although their number is comparatively minute, the number of those wishing to leave is much larger. The theme has become the most fashionable in Russian circles, overshadowing even conversations on summer resorts. Everyone seems to be wishing himself at a respectful distance from the Far East, everyone seems to be recollecting friends or relatives living somewhere in America—people with whom a correspondence might be started and who may—who knows?—even send for them. Newspapers have even launched a campaign against this epidemic, which shows—if it does nothing else—that faith among Russians in the future of Shanghai has suddenly started to fall.

In connection with the forthcoming celebration of the 950th anniversary of the baptism of Russia during the reign of the Tsar-Saint Vladimir, a special committee headed by Bishop Juvenalius has decided to issue a publication devoted to the occasion and has announced a competition for the best cover-design to be printed in five colours. Medals to commemorate the holiday will also be minted according to patterns just received from Belgrade, and little metal ikons will be offered to the public. Medals with the Vladimir ribbon will be awarded to all who took part in organizing the celebrations or gave material aid. It is also planned to issue one number of a newspaper to be called "Holy Russia."

News has been received from San Francisco of the death of M.M. Lojnikoff who after the revolution fled to Shanghai and worked in the local British American Tobacco Company for seven years and who in 1930 left for the United States. There he took to music, being a talented accompanyist and taking part in organizing concerts of the most varied kind. He died of heart-disease, being only 50 years old.

Young Pianist's Success

According to information from Belgium, Miss Fausta Saharova, young Shanghai pianist, has finished the Royal Conservatory, taking first place in the final examinations. Miss Saharova, who is only 20 years of age, left Shanghai two years ago. Here she studied piano under the well-known Prof. B. S. Zakharoff, and already attracted attention by appearing with the Municipal Orchestra and at scholastic concerts. The young pianist's father, Gen. N.P. Saharov, says that his talented daughter will spend some time in Europe and will arrive in Shanghai in the beginning of September.

Russian orientalists and all who studied at the Oriental Institute at Vladivostok will be sorry to hear that Prof. Petr Schmidt, Doctor of Philology, died in Riga on June 5. Well-known in the Far East, Prof. Schmidt for many years taught the Chinese language and literature at Vladivostok, and took ceaseless trips over China that on occasion brought him to Shanghai. In 1891 Prof. Schmidt entered the Moscow Imperial University. Later, he was transferred to St. Petersburg, where he joined the faculty of Oriental languages. This he finished with full honours, acquiring excellent knowledge of the Chinese, Mongol, Manchurian and Kalmik tongues. In the end of the preceding century Prof. Schmidt was sent from Russia to Peking where he continued his scientific investigations, and between the years 1899 and 1920 he was a member of the professoriate of the Vladivostok Institute. Following the revolution, he returned to his own country, where, in Riga, he lectured on philology, Latvian folklore and mythology. He attempted to found a faculty for studying Eastern subjects, and under his direction a score or so of students studied matters pertaining to the Far East. Prof. Schmidt left many books after him, the majority of which have been translated into German.

Comings and Goings

Mr. N. I. Kolesnichenko, well-known barrister-at-law, has left for a holiday in Japan from where he means to go to Tsingtao where he has a house of his own. Mr. F. J. Brinner, one of the largest industrialists of Manchuria, whose firm has branches in Harbin, Dairen and other cities, has recently arrived in Shanghai. Mr. Brinner, who is here on matters of business, will leave shortly. Miss Fina Rox, youthful singer, has arrived here from Tsingtao in order to take part in the beauty contest to choose the Miss Shanghai of 1938. Later Miss Rox intends to return to this popular summer resort.

A White Ball was held in the Ex-Officers' Union on July 8, organized by the Society of Russian Students for all Russian young men and women who this year graduated from local middle-schools and colleges. The necessary funds were gathered by the Ladies' Circle, and the whole idea must be acknowledged a very happy one. The Russian Students' Society likewise helps those Russians who, while receiving a higher education in one of the local Chinese or foreign universities, must at the same time earn their living.

Mr. N. M. Sokolsky, well-known balletmeister whose recent lecture before the Rotary Club on the history of the Russian Ballet stirred such interest, is, following the request of parents, opening a school of ballet for young people. Mr. Sokolsky is a propagandist of the necessity of learning dancing, averring that is invaluable both to young men and women as a means of physical culture Girls, as future mothers, especially profit from experienced instruction, as it is his opinion that dancing not only develops grace but is useful in that "a ballerina is never in the danger of faulty childbearing."

Mr. A. V. Shimanovsky, a young engineer specializing on radios, has recently arrived here from Harbin. Mr. Shimanovsky, who once gave courses on radio and published his own Russian-language magazine dealing with progress in that field, at present proposes to organize courses for training radio-technicians. Furthermore, he holds that Russian—and perhaps even foreign—Shanghai should have a good professional school for young men who, finishing school, cannot continue their education and yet must find a vocation. Shanghai lacks good specialists, and this often leads to a state of affairs whereby young men who could be of value to the community, cannot set a professional education and fall victim to the temptations of the big city. Mr. Shimanovsky's immediate plans are of modest proportions. He will start by organizing courses for radio-technicians, and if these beginnings meet with success—as was the case in Harbin—he will expand his courses to include other useful professions.

Transport Company Receive Medals

About 82 members of the S.V.C. Transport Company were presented with the Shanghai Municipal Council's 1937 Emergency medal at a parade held in the S.V.C. Drill Hall yesterday morning.

The presentations were made by Colonel J. W. Hornby, commanding the S.V.C., and the parade was under the command of Capt. J. D. E. Shotter, O.C., Transport Company.

After the distribution of the medals Col. Hornby paid a tribute to the work of the Company, and to its efficient service during the recent hostilities.

Anniversary Donations

Donations which poured into the offices of the Japanese gendarmerie in Hongkew during the three days from July 6 to 8 totalled Y2,715.50, the "Nippo" said yesterday.

The donations were made by Japanese residents in commemoration of the first anniversary of the beginning of hostilities. The paper said contributions to the Japanese Residents' Corporation on the anniversary amounted to Y14,000.

Cholera Scare on Emp. of Russia

Disembarkation Delayed By Few Hours; Liner Sails on Schedule

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia was placed under quarantine by the local port authorities when she arrived at the Shanghai & Hongkew Wharf Company's Hongkew Wharf from Manila and Hongkong yesterday afternoon. On board the Russia was one case of suspected cholera, a child having died en route.

The Russia came in on schedule and tied up at the wharf as usual; the yellow flag, meaning quarantine, had been hoisted, however, and no one was allowed either to go ashore or to come on board. In the meantime, a medical party, consisting of quarantine officers headed by Dr. Furukawa, was examining the ship and the passengers.

Piles of mail and luggage accumulated on the wharf as the quarantine officers went about their task. At 4.10 p.m., Dr. Furukawa left the ship, and the quarantine flag came down. A number of people on the wharf proceeded to go on board, but a few minutes later passengers and visitors were once more stopped from either boarding or leaving the ship. The final "all clear," however, was given by the River Police soon afterwards and the Empress of Russia was expected to sail on schedule at 4 o'clock this morning.

The cause of the alarm was the death en route of a Filipino child, death, it was suspected, being due to cholera. No less than 32 Shanghai-bound third class passengers were placed under quarantine, and six of these were sent to hospital for observation. After this, however, the ship was able to go about its normal unloading and enquiries at the local office last night indicated no change in the sailing time for Vancouver.

Inspection Measures In Nanking

Passengers and Cargo Will Be Examined

Tightening the anti-epidemic campaign, the Nanking health authorities, who recently offered cash rewards for flies killed, have established inspection stations at various public places, Chinese reports said yesterday.

For the present, three such stations are functioning. These are at the Hsiakwan Railway Station, the Hsiakwan wharves and the Chungshan city gate. Each station is in charge of a doctor, a nurse and two assistants.

All passengers arriving at Nanking either by land or by water must first proceed to one of the three stations for an examination by the health authorities. Any passenger suspected of having contracted communicable diseases is "detained" and then sent to the city's isolation hospital to receive proper treatment.

Even the passengers' luggage does not escape the health authorities' attention. At each city gate is stationed a squad of health officers, whose duty it is to spray all incoming luggage with a liquid disinfectant.

The disinfection process is also applied to fresh vegetables and fruits that are brought to Nanking daily. After arrival at the market the vegetables and fruits are disinfected for the second time before being permitted to be put on sale.

A house-to-house inspection is conducted by squads also organized by the health authorities. Any house suspected of having been infected is thoroughly disinfected by the inspection squads.

OBITUARY

Mr. R. W. Swallow

The death occurred very suddenly at 5 o'clock yesterday morning of Mr. Robert William Swallow, the distinguished authority on Chinese art and curios and for many years Kaifeng correspondent for the "North-China Daily News." As far as can be determined, Mr. Swallow, who arrived in Shanghai soon after the opening of hostilities, leaves no relatives.

Mr. Swallow was born at Ningpo on March 1, 1878, his father being Mr. Robert Swallow, M.D., his mother the former Miss Alice Johnson. After being educated at Ashville College, Harrogate, and Manchester University, he came out to China again in 1904, first joining the Shanse University in Taiyuan. From thence he proceeded to Peiping and later to Kaifeng.

During the Great War 1914-1918, Mr. Swallow joined the Chinese Labour Corps, serving with that body as Technical Officer and also interpreter; he spoke Chinese fluently.

As already mentioned, he was a great authority on Chinese curios, objects d'art, relics and so on. Immediately prior to the War, he was engaged with Bishop White on the excavations of ancient Chinese tombs and made several valuable and profound discoveries. After the war, he joined the Pekin Syndicate and was connected with that organization for a number of years.

Later, he went into business on his own, being chiefly concerned with Chinese curios and objects d'art, and his vast knowledge of the subject soon made his name known on even a wider scale as one of the world's most distinguished authorities on this extraordinarily difficult subject. Although he held the honorary degree of B.Sc. (Manchester) Mr. Swallow, during the latter part of his life, lived a very simple life in Kaifeng; nevertheless, he contributed regularly to the "North-China Daily News" and his articles were ever a delight to read and a feast for the mind.

His death yesterday was extremely sudden. Only the previous day he had complained that he was not feeling very well and, on his doctor's advice, he decided to make a trip to Japan for his health. He died peacefully yesterday morning at the age of 60 years.

Restaurants Inspected

Assisted by a "hygiene committee" of the Japanese Residents' Corporation, Japanese consular police examined food and beverages in restaurants and tea booths on Range Road and North Szechuen Road on Saturday, the "Nippo" said yesterday. Restaurants which failed to sterilize their wares were strictly warned by the authorities to do so at once.

Fake Revenue Man Dupes Woman

Well-dressed and suave, a Chinese confidence trickster was being sought by the Settlement Police yesterday.

On Saturday the man in question, carrying an official-looking brief-case, entered a Chinese house in Chekiang Road, blandly represented himself as a member of the S.M.C. Revenue Office staff and asked the residents to produce their rent receipt. He explained that his office required the receipt for purposes of comparison. The paper was promptly handed over to him and he left after thanking the residents most politely.

About an hour later the same man went to 109 North Fokien Road, confidently swinging his brief-case, and approached a Chinese woman living there.

"I am the Municipal tax collector," he said. "I believe you haven't paid your quarterly rate yet."

The woman admitted that he was right and produced $11.20, the tax money. The man took the money and handed her the rent receipt which he had obtained in Chekiang Road.

"Thank you—goodbye," he said and lifted his hat politely. "Goodbye," said the woman.

A description of the trickster was broadcast yesterday by the Police.

Czechoslovakia as Neutral State

Swiss Example Offered as Plan for Averting A War; Minorities Problem

London, July 9.

The British Government are now contemplating suggesting to Prague that Czechoslovakia adopt a status of neutrality similar to Switzerland's so as to avoid a Czecho-German conflict during the coming summer months, authorized political quarters asserted today.

Influential German circles told Lord Londonderry, when he visited the Reich recently, that they were determined to counteract the "Russian menace by demanding the cancellation of the Czecho-Soviet Treaty," it is understood.

Observers point out that the neutralization of Czechoslovakia is the only way to avoid an armed conflict between Prague and Berlin. They note particularly that Germany's fortifications on the western borders of the Reich would permit a concentration of all German forces against Czechoslovakia.—Havas.

Statute Nearing Completion

Prague, July 9.

The nationalities statute is now nearing completion as the Government busily pursues negotiations with the various groups interested in the vexing minorities question.

Premier Milan Hodza received today Dr. Jan Mazaryk, Czech Minister to London now on a visit here, Dr. Juraj Slawek, Czech Minister to Warsaw who is also on a visit here, and M. Konstantin Hrabar, Governor of Ruthenia. The last-named stated that all Ruthenian political parties demand the creation of a Ruthenian Diet and that elections to this Diet be held as soon as possible.

Dr. Hodza, it is further learnt, will attend the proceedings of the Parliamentary Committee next week when it resumes discussions with regard to the Government's scheme on the minorities.

Meanwhile, the Government are pursuing negotiations with Parliamentary Parties belonging both to the Governmental Coalition and to the Opposition. The authorities' scheme, aiming to settle the minorities problem, it is recalled, comprises three draft bills. There is the constitutional law on languages, the nationalities statute which will fix the position of non-Slav Czech citizens, and the law on autonomous administrations in non-Slav districts, including the Sudeten German regions.

Newspaper Criticism

The two first draft bills will be discussed by the Parliamentary Committee before being submitted to the consideration of the "Inner Cabinet", which includes only "political ministers." They will then be discussed by the Government and the minorities, will be submitted to the Cabinet once again and finally, will be put before Parliament for ratification.

The Sudeten German newspaper, "Neue Morgenpost", published an article today complaining that Prague's scheme for a settlement of the nationalities question has already been submitted to the Governmental Coalition Parties, who have allegedly proposed certain modifications, while it has not yet been communicated to the Sudeten German Party.

The news organ concludes, "If things go on like this, the draft bills will be submitted to Parliament before the Sudetens can give their advice."—Havas.

Chekiang Travellers Destitute

Thousands Unable to Sail To Shanghai

Not knowing that ships plying between Shanghai and Chekiang ports are forbidden by the military authorities to carry passengers, thousands of natives of East Chekiang districts desiring to come to Shanghai flocked to Chusan, Wenchow and Chingchai recently, only to find that it is impossible to take ships to Shanghai.

These travellers are marooned at the Chekiang ports and having spent the little money they brought, have become destitute.

The Ningpo Residents' Guild of Shanghai has sent a petition to the Chekiang military authorities asking them to permit the marooned travellers to come here, according to Domei.

Empress of Japan J. Laborde Due

Nellore Arrives Today; Conte Verde Leaves for Trieste on Thursday

As previously announced, the ss. Empress of Japan arrives from Vancouver and Japan, at the Shanghai & Hongkew Wharf Company's Hongkew Wharf tomorrow noon, and her passengers should reach the Customs Jetty at about 1.30 p.m. She leaves for Hongkong and Manila, at 4.30 a.m. on Wednesday, while passenger tenders leave the Customs Jetty on Wednesday at 4, 6.30 and 11 p.m.

Local offices of the M.M. expect their Jean Laborde, from Europe, at the Shanghai & Hongkew Wharf Company's Hongkew Wharf, sometime tomorrow, and announce that she should leave for Kobe on Friday.

According to present arrangements, the E. & A. S. Co. ss. Nellore is due from Hongkong, at buoys 13-14, today at 7 a.m. She leaves on the following day for Japan, from where she will proceed to Australia.

The N.Y.K. Hakozaki Maru arrives from Kobe today and sails from the company's wharf, on Wednesday for Straits, Colombo, Aden, Naples, Marseilles, London, Antwerp and Rotterdam.

No change was reported in the sailing date of the Lloyd Triestino Conte Verde, which is to leave the Old Ningpo Wharf, for Hongkong, Singapore, Colombo, Bombay, Port Said, Brindisi, Venice and Trieste, on Thursday at 9 a.m. Outgoing passengers are to be conveyed to the ship by tenders from the Customs Jetty, on Wednesday at 9 p.m. and on Thursday at 7 a.m. Heavy luggage should be delivered to the lighter at the Customs Jetty, on Wednesday between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Davies, Mrs. McCurley, Mrs. Gillespie and child, Mr. and Mrs. Bockler, Mr. Hollman, Mr. G. Schilz, Mr. and Mrs. Ast, Mr. Payne and child, Mr. Dumont, Mr. Glazier, Mrs. Filiavina, Mrs. S. S. Dvorkin, Mrs. Volobrinsky, Sister of Charity, and three Franciscan Sisters.

A Voyage to the "Blue"

Solution for Week-end Outing Problem

"How can we get out of Shanghai during this hot weather?" This question, now that the holiday resorts and scenic spots, around the city are inaccessible owing to the hostilities, is causing sweltering Shanghailanders much worry, but, through the foresight of a local shipping firm week-end outings from the city are put in the reach of all.

Several schemes have been considered by Jardine Matheson & Co. with a view to catering for the public's need for a change of air, and it has been decided to institute a series of trips to the Lower Yangtze on the company's most up-to-date river steamers. The trip will commence from the Garden Jetty at about 7 a.m. and the vessel will return from 4 to 6 p.m. on the following day.

The steamers engaged on these summer cruises, which should prove very popular with the public, are the Liwo, Tunghwa, and Suiwo.

Another scheme still under consideration by this firm is a voyage to the "blue." This will give Shanghailanders the opportunity of a visit to the sea by the company's steamer Kungwo, where they will be able to bathe to their heart's content, away from the city's madding throng.

These schemes should prove a boon to the city's isolated population, and it is anticipated that the demand for these cruises will justify their being instituted.

"Most Accurate Examination Yet Devised"
says leading English Physician

May 27, 1938.

Dear Dr. Rakusen,

The glasses which you have prescribed for me, as also those for members of my family, have proved most satisfactory and I wish to express my thanks to you. Your methods of examination are undoubtedly the most accurate yet devised. All my patients referred to you have always been most satisfied with their glasses. I have been particularly favourably impressed with your treatment of myopia in young people.

Yours sincerely,

Communist Leaders Assist Fund in Hankow

Hankow, July 10.

The Chinese Communist Party today joined in the "Offer Gold to the State" movement.

The Communist leaders Chen Shao-yu (Wang Ming) Ching Pang-hsien, Ling Tsu-han, Wu Yu-chang, Tung Pi-wu, and Teng Yin-chao (Mrs. Chow En-lai), walked up to one of the "receiving stations," situated in the Public Square before a bronze statue of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, and handed over $1,000 on behalf of the Chinese Communist Party.

The movement, which expired yesterday, has now been extended for a further two days.—Reuter.

Had Pimples On Her Face

SHE WAS ANAEMIC AND NERVY

"I found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills very good for pimples," states Miss G. Greves, of St. Helens, via St. Marys, Tasmania. "I had a lot of unsightly blotches and spots on my face, and became nervous and run-down. My nerves were very bad.

"My mother told me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and, after a few bottles I now feel very fit and well. My nerves are much better and all the pimples have disappeared."

Pimples, boils and sallow complexion are frequently due to poor, deficient blood, which also brings anaemic miseries and nervous troubles. These symptoms are destructive to fitness and attractive looks. You become languid and breathless, looks sallow and your nerves feel on edge. Give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and notice how the rich, red blood these pills help to create banishes your skin blemishes and strengthens your nerves and system throughout. Rosy cheeks, bright eyes, clear skin, new vigour and energy will soon make you attractive and fit. Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills without delay. At all chemists.

Interesting Photographic Exhibition

Leica Enlargements by Local Amateurs

Messrs. Schmidt & Co., Shanghai agents for Leica cameras, recently gave an exhibition of Leica enlargements taken by the world-famous Dr. Wolff. These pictures were magnificent, but doubts were raised that any lesser person than the great photographic artist could achieve such results. Messrs. Schmidt resolved to challenge this idea by giving incontrovertible evidence that any clever amateur armed with a Leica camera may also hope to reach these heights.

They therefore decided to hold an exhibition of Leica enlargements which are the work of local amateurs. The exhibition is now on and it will be a pleasant break in the day's routine to step during tiffin time into Messrs. Schmidt & Co.'s fine air-cooled offices in Liza Building (346 Szechuen Road) at the Nanking Road corner and spend an hour looking at some very fine pictures.

Here you will see work by Mr. C. L. Cheng (including photographs exhibited in Europe); night pictures by Mr. Le Palud; Chinese studies by Mr. Durocher; an almost incrediable stage picture by Mr. Goodfellow; flash-light work by Dr. Selimeyer; lotus flower studies by Mr. Schuster; garden pictures by Mr. C. T. Wu; and last but not least, some of Mr. Parsen's war photographs.

There is no entrance fee to the exhibition and a full description is attached to each picture shown.

Fourth Marines Church

The capacity congregation that attended the Fourth Marines' church service and concert held in the Grand Theatre yesterday morning, were amply rewarded with the fine programme which was held.

Mr. Wu Shao-yung, noted pianist, rendered two beautiful solos, Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and "Sonata In D" by Hyden. So enthusiastically were these selections received that Mr. Wu was recalled for an encore. Opening the concert, the Fourth Marines' Band, under the able direction of Staff Sergeant William R. Stuart, played the stirring overture "Il Guarany" by Gomez and for their second number, Mascagni's lovely "Cavalleria Rusticana." The programme concluded with the band's rendition of the ever popular Marines' Hymn and the American National Anthem.

The service which preceded the concert was conducted by Chaplain Frank R. Hamilton, of the Fourth Marines. Chaplain Hamilton gave a most interesting and forceful talk on the theme "Religion That Is Liveable." An added feature in the service was a brass quartet a "Sacred Melody" rendered by Sergeant Barton, Corporal Lee, Private First Class West and Private Lundgren, of the band. Band selections in the service included the Prelude "Indian Lullaby" by Klemm and for the Offertory Lake's beautiful composition "At Twilight." Musical accompaniment for the hymns sung in the service was rendered by the Marine Band.

Inaugurating a new feature in the regular Sunday morning programmes the entire church service and concert was broadcast over Radio Station XMHC.

FROM DAY TO DAY

COMMANDER Whitting, R.N., has become secretary of the Conservative Club in London.

MR. and Mrs. Frank Gill with Miss Gill who have been in Egypt during the past Spring, arrived on the Continent where they are making a short tour.

MR. W. W. Ritchie, formerly Postal Commissioner in China, and Mrs. Ritchie arrived in England about the middle of June.

MESSRS. Stewart McCracken and Thomas C. Britton, whose parents are in Shanghai, were awarded second class honours at the Peddie School, Hightstown, N.J.

MR. S. E. Faber, formerly a resident of Shanghai for a number of years, left Hongkong on July 8 by aeroplane for London. He will join his wife in England, and the couple expect to return to Hongkong together in September.

MR. A. L. Nutt, Assistant Australian Government Trade Commissioner in China, left yesterday for Australia upon completion of his term of office here. Mr. Nutt is taking up a position in Perth, Western Australia.

THE total collection of cigarette and wine taxes in Kiangsu and Chekiang Provinces during the past fiscal year was some $10,000,000 or 20 per cent. less than the figures for the year before last, says a report to the "China Daily News."

GENERAL Feng Chih-an, former Chairman of the Hopei Provincial Government, whose troops took part in the initial clash against the Japanese at Lukouchiao last summer, arrived in Hankow on July 7 on a summons from the Chinese high command, says a Chinese dispatch.

THE Chairman and members of the new Hupeh Provincial Government, General Chen Cheng and Messrs, Chang Nan-hsien, Shih Ying, Yen Li-san, Yang Mien-chung, Cheng Chia-chun, Chen Chien-hsiu and Liu Keh-su, were formally inducted into their offices on July 7, says a dispatch to the "Hwa Mei Chen Pao." The inaugural ceremony, which was also attended by Dr. Chu Shia-hwa, Mr. Yeh Chu-tsung and General Ho Yueh-tsu in the capacity of supervisors, was presided over by the General Executive of the Kuomintang, General Chiang Kai-shek, gave the principal address.

THE local Inspectorate of Customs has resumed the collection of the silver equalization tax, promulgated yesterday at .25 per cent., says a message to the "Sin Wan Pao." This tax has been levied ever since the adoption of the currency reform by the Chinese Government in November 1935 in order to prevent the outflow of silver abroad. Collection of the tax, however, was virtually suspended during the past two months, when the value of silver abroad was more or less at par with its domestic quotations. The gradual rise of the silver price in overseas markets during the past few days, it is reported, has once more made the levy of the equalization tax necessary.

THE record rainfall in Kiangnan districts last month, which was the heaviest in sixty years, is certain to spoil the autumn crops this year, according to a report to the "Sin Wan Pao." According to a recent arrival from the interior, rice, beans, cotton and other agricultural products have shown signs of stunted growth and are expected to yield much less than they at first promised. Farmers who have returned to their fields, said this arrival, have been greatly handicapped in their work by their losses of draught animals and the destruction of farm buildings in the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

Soviet Staff Leaving

Hankow, July 10.

About 70 persons, composing part of the Soviet Embassy staff, and including clerks and servants, will leave Hankow tomorrow morning in a special steamer for Chungking, to open the Embassy office there. The Soviet Charge d'Affaires, the Military Attache, and the Secretaries and Counsellors, however, will remain in Hankow for the present.—Reuter.

Death of Justice Cardozo

U.S. Supreme Court Judge Passes at Age of 68; Law Loses Great Exponent

Port Chester, N.Y., July 9.

Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Cardozo died here today after a prolonged illness from which he had not been expected to recover.

He was taken seriously ill in Washington in mid-winter when hope for his life was abandoned several times. During a later improvement in his condition he was moved to his summer home here to avoid the extreme heat of the Washington summer, but his condition remained critical.

Few men have reached the pinnacle of the legal profession with a deeper or wider knowledge of law, or with a more sympathetic understanding of its social and humane application than Justice Cardozo. He was appointed Associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in February, 1932, by President Hoover. His legal experience was gained in New York City, where he was born on May 24, 1870. Justice Cardozo resigned as chief judge of the New York Court of Appeals to accept the supreme court appointment.

He was a prodigious worker. He had no hobbies, was monkish in his habits, rising early, and adhering to a rigorous schedule of work that often kept him at his desk 16 to 18 hours a day.

Powerful English

He dressed informally and quietly, but his appearance was striking. His lean, ascetic face, shock of white hair falling across his fine, high brow, his dark eyes, and strong jutting jaw drew attention in any gathering. His writings were clear and forceful. His law professor at Columbia University said of him: "He writes the most powerful English since Alexander Hamilton."

Justice Cardozo had an amazing memory and a genius for seizing upon essentials, no matter how involved and obscure, and propounding them in brilliant, fluid and lucid language. He had an obsession for being exact.

Few men in public life had more warm, personal friends. He had the knack of making and holding friends. Until her death a few years ago, he lived with his sister, Nellie Cardozo. Their mother died when he was 9 and his sister reared and cared for him at their old family home in New York City during the remainder of her life. There was a strong bond of affection between the two.

Justice Cardozo often spent his summers on the Jersey coast, where he lived in a rented house. In Washington he resided in a small suite in the Mayflower Hotel. He read omnivorously, and liked nothing better than to spend an evening with a volume of Latin or Greek.

He was graduated from Columbia in 1890 with a master's degree at the age of 20 and was admitted to bar in 1891. He was elected justice of the Supreme Court of New York in January, 1914, and a month later was designated by the governor to act as associate justice of the Court of Appeals of New York. He became Chief Judge of the Appeals Court in 1918 and served in that office until 1932, when he resigned to accept the Supreme Court appointment.—United Press.

U.S. Citizens Will Be Protected

Washington, July 9.

The State and Navy Departments have decided to continue protecting United States citizens in China war zones despite Japan's latest warning against the passage of foreign vessels on the Upper Yangtze, diplomatic quarters usually well-informed on Far Eastern affairs declared today.

A gunboat may even be stationed on the upper reaches of the river if it is deemed necessary that a naval unit be present in those regions. At present, there is no United States naval ship far inland, it is asserted here.—Havas.

Tokyo's Reaction To July 7

Attempts of S.M.C. Seen to Get French Assistance; "N.C.D.N." Quoted

Tokyo, July 10.

Attempts of the British-dominated Shanghai Municipal Police to force the French Municipal authorities to extend closer and more effective co-operation in curbing terrorist outrages in the International Settlement by Chinese allegedly based in the Concession were reflected yesterday in an editorial of the British-owned and operated "North-China Daily News," dispatches from Shanghai said today. The journal was described in the reports as the "official mouthpiece" of the Shanghai Municipal Council.

Said the editorial, in part,: "Breaches of the peace by men armed with military weapons, whether they be bombs, grenades or pistols should entail handing the culprits over to the Japanese authorities. Even mere possession of such weapons should lead to the same action."

The police authorities of the International Settlement, the reports stated, are "embarassed" because the territorial propinquity of the two foreign-controlled areas facilitates terrorists to flee into French-controlled territory.

The French police, while anxious to curb terrorism, find their hands tied by the alleged dilatory tactics employed by the judges of the Chinese Branch Second Special District Court and the Third Branch High Court of Kiangsu located in the Concession.

These judges are Hankow appointees and are further accused of treating anti-Japanese terrorist suspects with leniency and of frequently interfering with the work of the French police.

The suggestion of the "North-China Daily News," which the press reports say was "inspired" by the S.M.C., would enable the police in both foreign-controlled areas to strike with vigour against terrorists since the authorities would not have to cope with the Chinese law courts.—Domei.

A soda-jerker in a country town drug store is Mr. Joe E. Brown's role in "Wide Open Faces" which opened at the Metropol Theatre yesterday, and, in his usual hilarious manner, Mr. Brown was responsible for keeping the audience in a state of perpetual mirth. Although Mr. Brown has appeared in better films he makes the best of his part, and he is by far the most outstanding personality in the picture. The supporting cast, with the exception of Miss Alison Skipworth appear to be overshadowed, but, nevertheless, the film is amusing. The story deals with the escape of a notorious bank robber, who visits the drug store of Wilbur Meeks (Mr. Brown), and is captured by "G" men, after attempting to make a visit to where he had hidden the loot, in Meek's rattling old "flivver". Of course, Meeks becomes front page news and all the crooks from New York believing that Wilbur knows where the loot is hidden come to his little town of Willow Springs. The ensuing scenes, during which the money is found and stolen by the crooks and later recovered by Meeks, gave Mr. Brown plenty of scope to use his comic talents and wonderful capacity for making animal noises through that outsize mouth of his.—R.S.

Novelty and farce are successfully blended in "Blossoms on Broadway," whose highly complicate plot may fail to impress local hardened audience, but it furnishes excellent scope for Edward Arnhold's fine personalization of ambitious and designing Ira Collins.

The first glance at Sheriff Holloway going to New York makes one sure that he has something up his sleeve, but it is not until the end of the picture, when he narrates all the incidents of his journey, that one learns how quaint, humorous and attractive can a simple farce be when it is presented by as gifted an actor as Mr. Rufe Davis.

Messrs. Weber and Fields are responsible for numerous humorous incidents, while Mr. Neil Graham and Miss Sally Shea furnish the indispensable romantic touch. The quaint humour is well represented throughout the picture and cannot fail to impress any one who appreciates a good light comedy.—M.U.

HYGIENIC method of Packing ASPRO EXPLAINED

The 'ASPRO' plant consists of the most up-to-date and efficient mechanical apparatus, including a number of 'SANITAPE' machines, which seal the tablets hygienically in specially prepared wax paper compartments.

This system is known as the modern HYGIENIC 'SANITAPE' method of packing, and because of its thoroughly protective properties, ensures that 'ASPRO' retains its original high standard of purity. This should serve to commend 'ASPRO' to all who appreciate the absolute necessity of purity in medicine.

The wonderful human-like 'SANITAPE' machines are one of the most ingenious and highly-developed engineering triumphs of modern times. The machines wrap the tablets with unerring regularity in waxed paper, divide the paper into separate compartments, crimp each compartment so that no air can find access to the tablet, fold the tape, and finally pass them through sprays of paraffin wax, effectively sealing the 'SANITAPE', and rendering the tablets proof against damp, moisture and any form of contamination.

There are NO Risks when you take 'ASPRO'

15 PROVED USES FOR 'ASPRO'

1—It relieves Headaches in 5 to 10 minutes.
2—It brings Sweet Sleep to the sleepless.
3—It relieves Rheumatism in one night.
4—It will ease the Nagging Pains of Neuritis and Neuralgia.
5—Take 'ASPRO' to relieve Toothache.
6—'ASPRO' taken according to directions will smash up a Cold or 'Flu attack in 24 hours.
7—It brings relief without harming the heart.
8—It soothes away irritability.
9—It speedily reduces Temperature.
10—The stabbing pains of Sciatica and Lumbago can be hunted out with 'ASPRO'.
11—It can be taken at any time, in Tram, Train, at Home, at Business, anywhere—everywhere.
12—It gives great relief to women when depressed.
13—It relieves ill after-effects of Alcohol.
14—It relieves Dengue and Malaria by reducing the fever.
15—As a gargle 'ASPRO' is wonderful for Sore Throats and Tonsilitis.

Pitts' Orgy of Hitting

Police Forced to Share Points with Parsees; Remarkable Catch Made by F. Woodley

DESPITE ominous clouds and the ever-present threat of rain over Shanghai yesterday, the Police played off their League fixture against the Parsee Cricket Club on the Recs ground and were unfortunate in being forced to share points with their opponents. F. A. Pitts, massive goliath of this city's custodians, indulged in an orgy of free hitting to pile up half his side's total in less than an hour, and rounded off the game with a superb display of keeping. H. A. Sevenoaks and B. B. Boddy, the spearhead of the Police attack, bowled well to return an excellent analysis, while of the opposing side S. F. Shroff distinguished himself by taking five wickets for 40 runs and later by keeping his team together with a useful 36.

The sun was attempting to peep from behind the clouds when Sevenoaks and Pitts walked out to open for the visitors. The Shroff brothers had charge of the bowling, and almost immediately both struck a fair length to calm any thought of fast scoring. Pitts was cautious, and Sevenoaks returned one after the other to the bowler. The latter, however, paid for his greediness when he attempted a short one, and was returned with the score at 16. Barton assisted Pitts till the half-century, by which time the taller man had got his eye in and proceeded to enjoy himself. The partnership broke up when Barton failed to survive an appeal by Viccajee, and Boddy came in to relieve.

Little time was wasted in raising the rate of scoring, and from Boddy's appearance onwards, spectators were treated to a delightful display of hard hitting. Both batsmen belaboured with characteristic abandon, and reached the tapes on more occasions than they had to run.

Pitts in particular showed a sound knowledge of timing, and on four occasions pitched the ball over the tapes for the maximum. Besides these, his innings included seven 4's, most of which were made through the covers. The remarkable feature of the session was that all but eight runs were made in front of the wicket, which goes to show that his main idea was to punish the bowling at all costs.

Valuable Partnership

Soon after this partnership, which yielded 71 valuable runs, Gash and Fairbairn assisted in raising the score to the 150 mark, but not before Baker was run out as the result of a misunderstanding. S. F. Shroff had by now settled down to restraining the opposition, and runs came slowly after the initial slaughter. Soon both tail-end batsmen fell to his wiles, and the innings closed for 160 runs at the tea interval.

The Parsees opened disastrously, losing Mehta when the batsman fouled one from Sevenoaks at 7. Karanjia and S. F. Shroff played carefully, and runs came exceedingly slowly for over an hour. To win, the Police had to play well over their usual standard, and it was noticeable that this time they did so. Fielding was clean and returns were smart, besides which the side was fortunate in having three good cricketers in the three most important positions.

Sevenoaks made up in length and swerve what he unavoidably lacked in speed, while Boddy from the Widow's Monument end kept up a consistent turn of speed to worry the opposition into nibbling. For this the Police keeper was ready, and Pitts' taking of Divecha especially was a remarkable piece of work.

At least with the Parsee's main hope back in the Pavilion the Police had every right to feel confident about the decision. Tata and Kooka, however, gave rise to anxiety by their stubborn display of blocking, so much so that Boddy at one time had no less than five men in the gully.

Ten Minutes To Go

With but ten minutes to go Charna tried to cut Sevenoaks past point, and Gash collected neatly to see the eighth wicket fall. Kermani relieved, Viccajee was making every attempt to waste time by driving every delivery as hard as he could, and thus the score mounted by two's and three's till past the ninety mark. In their race against time the Police changed over quickly, and were temporarily encouraged when Woodley at cover made quite the best catch of the season to dismiss Kermani.

The Parsee batsman put everything behind a short one from Boddy, and Woodley collected left-handed after the ball appeared to have touched the ground. Karanjia helped Viccajee play out the remaining few minutes, when the Police strove their utmost to snatch a decisive decision.

It was most surprising that at such a point in the game an extension of time was not arranged, so that 6.30 p.m. saw stumps drawn and points divided equally between the two sides.

Interesting Bowls At Hongkew

Police, Recs Tie with 78 In Shots, Latter Add Four in Points

One of the most interesting games of the season's league matches was played yesterday at Hongkew Park between the Police and the Recs. In shots, the contest finished with a tie, 78 all, but in points the Recs added four to their League score, winning three rinks.

That the Recs did not win the match is due chiefly to C. J. Bull who played a fighting game throughout. At the last end of this particular rink Madar lie two but in trying to add the third he, Madar, took the jack through and left the Recs with only one. As a compensating error, MacDermott, who was lying one shot with a possible second, took the jack and left himself one.

Another close game was played at the Race Course where the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Club 'Blues' met the Clube Lusitano, the Home team winning by 79 shots to 75. At the 19th end both sides were running level. In the last end Ozorio played a good wood which produced two but which might easily have changed the result of the match into a win for the Clube Lusitano. Turnbull's final shot was spectacular, changing the lie into his favour.

Amateurs, "Pros" May Meet

The extraordinary snobbishness exhibited by some die-hards over the question of professional tennis is something which most of us cannot understand at all; but it looks as though the old Guard may have to stand down soon, and—gracefully or otherwise—acknowledge their defeat. For it has been rumoured that the amateurs and professionals are to meet for the first time at Wimbledon!

It is impossible at this stage to say how this will be arranged, and it is probably too late now to stage such a meeting this year, in any case, but when it does come it will be an event worth watching. Some see in this the thin end of the wedge for an Open championship such as those which are held for golfers.

It is reported that Wimbledon have already fixed their share of the proceeds. They will pay all expenses, and will take 60 per cent. of the "gate," the professionals receiving the other 40 per cent.

"Bill" Tilden and Fred Perry are behind this scheme, pushing it for all they are worth; for the meeting, when it does come off, will make history. Everyone had already given up all hopes of ever seeing Perry and Austin within miles of each other again, and a fight between Budge and Vines or Nusslein would be more than worth all the scramble which is bound to ensue for the tickets.—Reuter.

Headquarters Just Beat the Amateurs

Miles of Headquarters at bat in the game played yesterday at the Race Course diamond, when Headquarters beat the Amateurs by ten runs to nine, after twelve innings. A large crowd watched one of the most thrilling displays of baseball of the season.

Marine Hqs. Still Unbeaten

Amateur Nine Lose by 10-9 in Drawn-Out Fight; Five Pitchers Used

HEADQUARTERS, U.S. Marines remained the only unbeaten team in the Shanghai City Baseball League as they took the measure of the Amateur nine at the Race Course yesterday afternoon by outscoring the civilians 10-9 in a long drawn-out fight which travelled the distance of twelve innings. Throughout the contest no less than five pitchers were used, the Amateurs providing three while the service nine inserted two. In all, the winners poked out a total of thirteen hits to their opponents' eleven.

Wells, the tall and husky Marine moundsman, was outstanding. He relieved Porter in the initial inning after the Amateurs had scored two runs off him and went along in masterly fashion, except in the eighth frame when Riddick's men cracked out five hits for four runs and tied the score at 7-7. In stickwork Wells doubled once and singled thrice in four trips to the plate. He was credited with driving in the winning tally in the twelfth fracas and eventually sewed up the game.

The Amateurs were handicapped by the absence of Bill Lamneck, shortstop, who injured his thumb in Saturday's tussle against the First Battalion. Al Huebner was also on the bench until the final inning when he took up the twirling job. He had felt the strain of pitching his team to victory against the First Battalion and, therefore, needed some rest.

Because of Huebner's tired arm, Jimmy Kam, Hawaiian-born Chinese, was assigned to fly the mound flag. He was touched for six hits and lost as many runs in the first four innings. George Adams, the Shanghai American School star, took over and gave an impressive performance despite the loss. From the fifth to the end of the eleventh session, the schoolboy yielded seven hits, struck out eight batsmen and walked two.

"A Wicked Bat"

Among the highlights was Jim Ward's home run which came in the very beginning off Porter. Wielding a wicked bat, the civilian second baseman socked the ball over the shortstop and sizzled between centre and left field. Riley was at second when Ward pulled the stunt, and Porter was immediately benched in favour of Wells.

Nevertheless, the two-run advantage did not last even an inning as the "Leathernecks" equalled on account of errors by Kam, Kabbert, Krause and Riley. Following their success, the Marines added another pair of runs in the second round on Hyman's single and Wells' double.

None got home in the third inning but in the fourth stanza the Amateurs collected two hits off Wells and crossed the home plate once. The Marines also gained two bingles which accounted for two runs for a lead of 6-3. Sonnenberg's slugging was responsible for the two markers, driving in Varconi and Garard.

After the next two innings in which no hits and no runs were made, the Headquarters increased their margin to 7-3. This time it was Lawler who allowed Garard's hit to become a three-bagger; he completely misjudged the flight of the ball, permitting it to scale above his head out into the deep right garden. Sonnenberg flied out to W. Ward at left but on the catch the Marine first baseman streaked across the home rubber unthreatened.

Krause Bingles

As the Headquarters seemed bound to win, things began to happen with the Amateurs' swinging their big bats into action. Riley singled after Adams had reached first and was followed by the two Ward brothers who drew a two-base hit each. Krause bingled and predecessors got home to tie the score at 7-7.

The ninth and tenth innings failed to bring any result. In the eleventh Krause sent a Texas-leaguer behind second. Brown, in Lawler's place, bunted and Krause was tagged out at second. Ligon fanned. Kabbert's hot grounder was juggled by Wells and Brown safely made third. Adams fired into leftfield, sending Brown and Kabbert home.

In their own half of the innings the Marines did likewise and knotted the score at 9-9. Pitcher Wells singled to left. After Hyman had whiffed, Varconi drove out a three-bagger and pushed Givens, who ran for Wells, home. Then Garard bunted Varconi home for the third tying run.

Going into the 12th round the Amateurs could not do a thing and were retired in one-two-three order. Not so with the ultimate winners, for Huebner's free pass to Williams gave the Marines the final break. Childress grounded out via J. Ward but Rosher singled to right. Williams grew too ambitious while trying to steal home. He was put out by Huebner at the plate, assisted by Krause. Wells slammed towards Brown at right but the latter chose to wait for the ball to drop. On the throw-in, Givens, who ran for Rosher, raced home and had got in safe. Kabbert dropped the ball after having tagged the runner out, losing the game by an error in the pinch.

Max Schmeling Back In Germany

Will Place Himself in Care Of Specialist

Bremen, July 10.

Max Schmeling arrived here yesterday, his wife, the film actress Anny Ondra having met the steamer already outside Bremerhaven.

During the final days of the voyage Schmeling had been relieved of the cast in which he has lain since his fight with Joe Louis and was sitting up when he received visitors and reporters in his cabin.

Although he still showed the effects of the fight and his days in hospital, Schmeling was in a cheerful mood, but refused to discuss the bout or his plans for the future. He intends for the time being to place himself in the hands of the Berlin specialist Professor Erwin Gohrbandt until he has completely recovered from the injury to his spine.—Trans-Ocean.

Eton Draws with Harrow

London, July 9.

Owing mainly to interruption by rain the annual match at Lord's between Eton and Harrow ended in a draw. Eton won last year by seven wickets.

The match was in a very interesting position when it was abandoned owing to rain. The scores then were:

Eton 230 and 118 (Hayward five for 40).

Harrow 200 and 16 for one.—Reuter.

Budge, Mako Reach Czech Finals

Americans Score An Easy Victory at Prague; Mrs. Moody Wins Irish Title

Prague, July 9.

Don Budge and Gene Mako, championship American double team, today advanced to the finals in the Czechoslovakian Championships by defeating Joseph Malecek and Victor Benda of Czechoslovakia. The Americans won in straight, easy sets: 6-1, 6-2, and 6-2.

Malecek and Miss Zdenka Ortinova of Czechoslovakia won the semi-finals in the mixed doubles, however, defeating Mako and Miss Helen Straube of Czechoslovakia. Maleck and Miss Ortinova took the first set at 12-10 and clinched the match with an 8-6 margin in the final set.

Budge will meet Ladislaus Hecht of Czechoslovakia in the men's singles finals here tomorrow.—United Press.

Another Title For Mrs. Moody

Dublin, July 9.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, again "Queen of the Courts," today added another victory to her successful come back campaign by defeating Miss Thelma Jarvis, of Great Britain, in the finals of the Women's Irish Championships. Miss Jarvis was defending champion.

Mrs. Moody won the title in straight sets, taking the first at 6-4 and clinching the match with an easy 6-2 margin in the second set.—United Press.

Inspired Bowling By Boyes

Nine Wickets for Only 57 Runs; Hart's 105 Sole Century of the Day

London, July 9.

The feat of Boyes, the Hampshire left-hander, in taking nine wickets in Somerset's first innings at Yeovil was the highlight of the first-class cricket matches which got under way today. Boyes, who was unable to play for the greater part of last year through injury, was in inspired form. His nine wickets cost only 57 runs.

Middlesex, out to regain their lead in the County Championship, made a splendid start again Notts, knocking up 394 for nine, to which Robertson contributed 91, Allen 56 and Hart 105. Hart's century was the only one of the day, in which bowlers dominated.

Details:—

At Pontypridd—Glamorgan 299 for seven (Emrys Davies 85, Dai Davies 78 not out) against Northants.

At Leicester—Leicester 191. Lancashire no runs for one wicket.

At Stourbridge—Gloucester 122 for four (Allen 71 not out) against Worcester.

At Blackheath—Kent 125 (Watts four for 45, Berry four for 48). Surrey 114 for two (Fishlock 55).

At Chesterfield—Yorkshire 198 (George-Pope six for 37). Derby 37 for three.

At Yeovil—Somerset 116 (Boyes nine for 57) and 76 for six. Hampshire 125 (Wellard six for 62, Meyer four for 44).

At Nottingham—Middlesex 394 for nine (Robertson 91, Allen 56, Hart 105) against Notts.

At Hove—Essex 186 (O'Connor 96, James Cornford five for 48). Sussex 149 for five (Harry Parks 57 not out).—Reuter.

Bees Snap Giants Winning Streak

Reds Swamp Bruins With Score of 11 to 0, Keep Pace with Pirates

New York, July 11.

Keeping his opponents well in check on a portion of seven scattered hits, Lou Fette led the Bees to a 7-0 triumph over the New York Giants today to snap the long winning streak of the Terrymen.

Four runs in the third inning put the game in the bag for the Bees, for Fette continued to hurl scoreless ball throughout the game. Tony Cuccinello, Jack Fletcher and Sammy West belted out home runs to make Fette's task easier.

The Cincinnati Reds staged a track meet at the expense of the Chicago Cubs, swamping the Bruins by a score of 11-0 to keep pace with the second place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ernie Lombardi, star Red catcher, was the hero of the game, connecting for three timely singles which accounted for four Redleg tallies. Wallie Berger clouted a home run in the eighth inning with one mate on the paths.

In a rip-roaring struggle, the Pittsburgh Pirates nosed out the St. Louis Cardinals by 8-7 to hold their margin over the Cincinnati Reds. The Bucs staged a big uprising in the second inning, scoring five runs before they could be stopped. Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize clouted homers for the Cards, but the amazing Johnny Rizzo, who has been hitting home runs of late with the frequency of singles, amply replied for the Bucs with two circuit blows on his own hook.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia waged the fiercest battle of the day, going to sixteen innings after the score had been tied at 1-1 in the fifth. In the 16th, the Phils trumped two runs by their opponents with three of their own for victory when Gus Arnovich cracked out a single with the bases loaded.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians and the New York Yankees continued their neck and neck battle for the lead, both winning.

The Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox by 11-6, chiefly by dint of a three run rally in the fourth inning and subsequent home runs by Jake Powell, Tom Henrich and Joe Gordon, the latter connecting for a pair of circuits. Joe Cronin made the only reply for the Red Sox.

Two home runs by Hank Greenberg and two runs in the seventh inning paved the way to a 4-0 victory for the Detroit Tigers over the Chicago White Sox. Eldon Auker held the Hose in complete subjugation, limiting them to a sparse fare of only four hits.

Despite a three run rally in the seventh inning, Wesley Ferrell hurled his eleventh victory of the year for the Washington Senators, who conquered the Philadelphia Athletics by a score of 7-4.

Two runs in the seventh inning enabled the Cleveland Indians to come from behind and tie the St. Louis Browns at 4-4, forcing the game eventually in an extra inning. In their half of the tenth, the Tribe scored the winning run when Lary walked, stole second and scored on a single to right by Earl Averill.

Swiss Ladies Lose Second Match

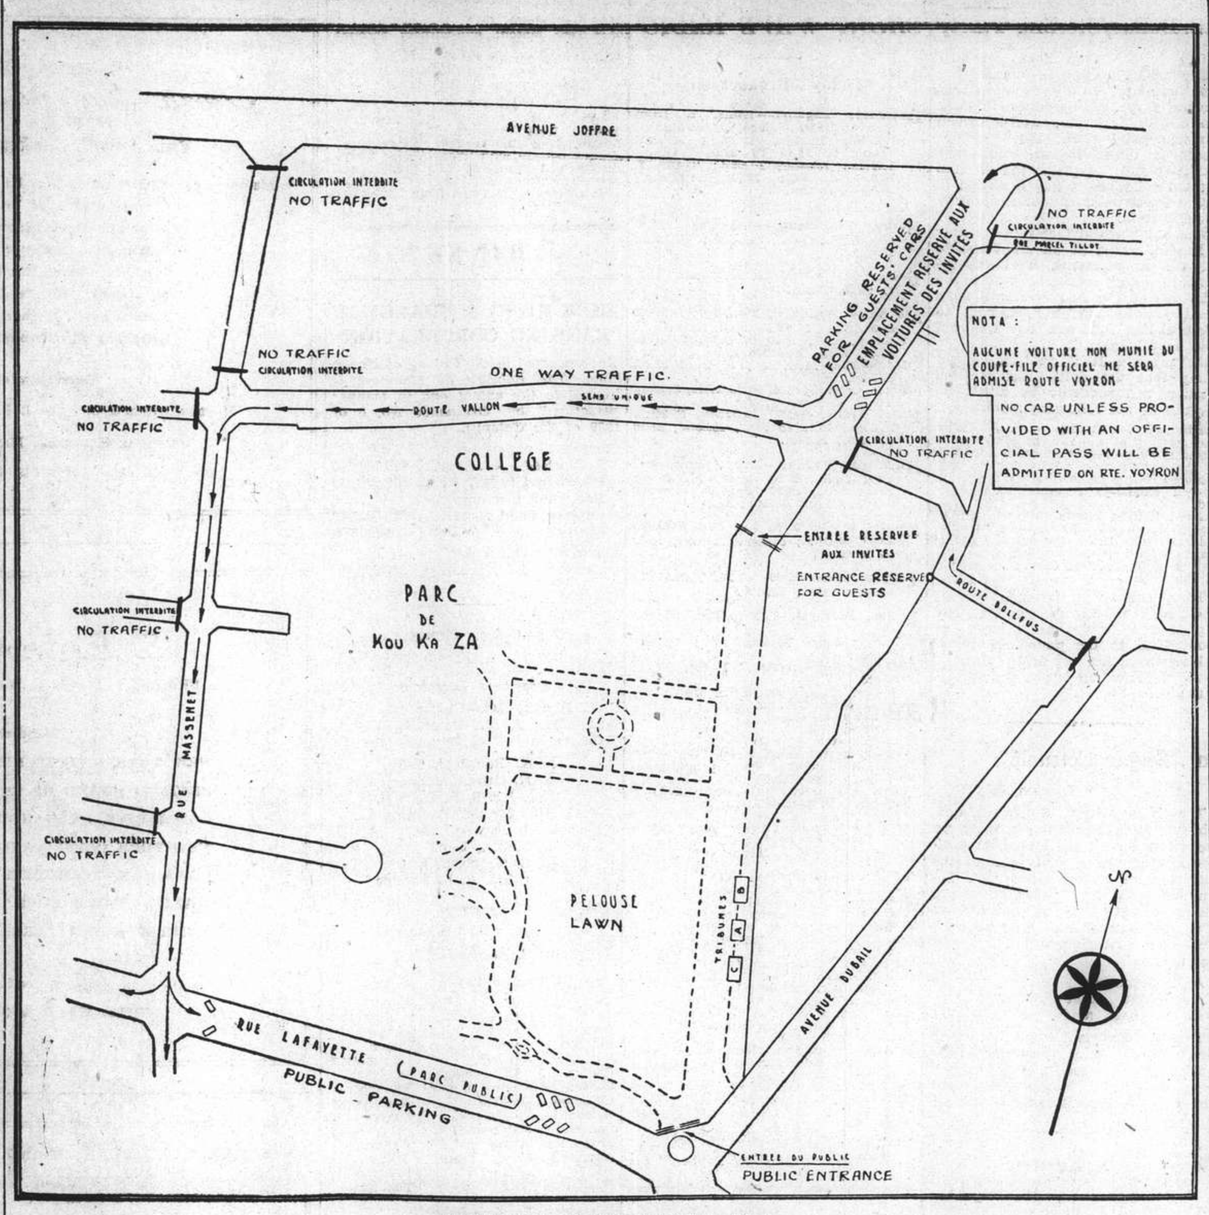
Suffer 8-1 Defeat Against Cercle Sportif

The Swiss Club, newly promoted team from Second Division to First in the Shanghai Ladies Tennis League, lost their second successive match to the strong Cercle Sportif Francais "A" team yesterday afternoon on the Frenchwomen's courts by a score of 8-1.

Mrs. B. Krenov and Miss Tavares, after winning the first set by 6-1, had a strenuous contest with Mrs. Getz and Miss Horsky and ran to 9-7 and 6-4. The visitors could have captured at least one of those sets but time and again they fell short of just a few strokes. Mrs. Krenov hit hard and well while Miss Tavares worked creditably on the baseline most of the time.

In the second doubles, the French team again walked away without yielding a single set. With the exception of the second frame which went 7-5, both the first and third sets resulted in 6-2. The losers could not break their opponents' service games and had to admit defeat.

However, the Swiss players, Mrs. Duff and Mrs. Daer, started out the third couple with a 6-2 win. But in the remaining sessions the homesters, Mrs. Heinzerling and Mrs. Marin, asserted themselves and came through with two consecutive sets by 6-1 and 6-4.



Fourteenth of July Parking Plan

With a view to providing for the traffic in the best possible conditions in the vicinity of Koukaza Park, the following arrangements have been made:

1. A parking space reserved for the cars provided with an official pass, will be established for the guests, Route Voyron, between Avenue Joffre and Route Vallon.

2. No vehicle will be admitted Route Vallon, beginning from 7 a.m. unless it is provided with an official pass.

3. Vehicles will be allowed to station on both sides of Rue Lafayette according to indications which will be given on the spot by constables of the traffic department.

4. No traffic will be allowed in Route Vallon, between Route Voyron and Rue Massenet, from 7 a.m., as well as in the section of Rue Massenet situated between Route Vallon and Rue Lafayette.

5. The standing of vehicles of all categories will be forbidden from 8 to 10 a.m., along the footpath south of Avenue Joffre, between Avenue Dubail and Rue Cardinal Mercier, and along Avenue Dubail West side, between Avenue Joffre and Rue Lafayette.

At the end of the review, the cars of the guests having official pass will clear by Route Vallon and Rue Massenet.

How Ross Went Down Fighting

Magnificent Display of Pluck Against Negro

By Henry Mclemore

New York, July 8.

Barney Ross paid the price of courage when he lost his welterweight boxing title.

Paid it the hard way—with his own blood.

For fifteen rounds—45 long, agonizing minutes, he stood up before the ring's most merciless workman and defied him to do his worst.

Henry Armstrong accepted the challenge and did.

At the finish the only thing recognizable about Ross was the red badge of courage he had worn when entering the ring. It still was untarnished. His eyes were blue and ugly lumps. His cheeks were swollen, unsightly. His lips stood out in a bruised pout, and his body was a mass of welts.

As early as the tenth round his condition was such that the referee leaned over the ropes to talk with doctors and the head of the boxing commission.

Ross To Fight No More

Ross will fight no more. He's through. He told me in his training camp that he would never take but one beating. "Let a guy give it to me—really give me my bumps—and I'll hang up the gloves," Ross said.

Well, a guy gave it to him last month. The "guy" is named Henry Armstrong, and he is 133 pounds of almost inhuman properties.

I say "inhuman" because a man is not supposed to behave the way Armstrong did. He went at a blistering top speed for 15 rounds—and he didn't even sweat. He threw 10,000 punches, and yet when he stood in his corner, ready to come out for the final round, he wasn't even breathing heavily. I know this to be true, because the night was cold and I could see his breath in the frosty air. It was as regular as that of a man who had walked only a block or two at a brisk pace.

He gave you the impression of being more a machine than a man.

"Cut his veins," I heard one spectator say, "and he'll run lubricating oil, not blood."

Yes, cut him open and I am sure you'd find springs and coils and armatures and dynamos and bits of metal. In the early rounds Ross hit him plenty. But he never changed expressions. A right to the chin and he only snorted a bit louder and moved in a bit faster. Punches to the body only seemed to set off a hidden power that drove him onto the attack at a faster pace.

He fought every round the same, from the first to the fifteenth. The bell rang. He came out on the run and in a split second was chest to chest with Ross. A right would do. Then a left. Then a jab. Then a hook. Then an uppercut. Then more hooks, more jabs, more uppercuts. And, when it appeared that he had thrown all the blows in the book, he would burrow in closer and use his shoulders, elbows, and head.

He was perpetual motion in purple trunks; a buzz saw with gloves on.

Ross soon wearied. He tried to coast, but there, flailing away at him every second, was the Little Negro. Ross would go into a corner. There would be the Little Negro. Ross would duck and there would be the Little Negro, beating him on every exposed surface. Ross would weave and there, weaving in front of him, would be the Little Negro.

Fists. Fists. Fists. Fists. Thousands of them.

That's Armstrong, the new welterweight champion.—United Press.

Foran to Meet Armstrong

Ginger Foran, the Liverpool featherweight who has made himself so popular in America by his spirited fighting, will definitely meet Henry Armstrong in England for the latter's featherweight title sometime in August, according to Foran's manager Ralph Gold, reports Reuter.

Arrangements for the fight have been concluded and Foran and his manager will sail for England shortly.—Reuter.

Jobs for Old Footballers

Ex-Players to Coach Boys, Y.M.C.A. Teams

Jobs for ex-players as coaches are being found now that the Football Association Council have decided to cover the boys' works' and Y.M.C.A. clubs, which run teams for lads of from 14 to 18 years of age, says a London message.

This follows a questionnaire which was sent recently to elementary schools by the English Schools F. A. It was found that 1,250 teachers wished to attend courses as active members and over 1,000 as observer members.

These two new outlets mean a lot of jobs for the explayer coach. In fact professional footballers, now that the F. A.'s ambitious coaching scheme is getting under way, will be fairly sure of getting comparatively well paid positions at the end of their playing days.

Fixed Salaries

The F. A. means to recommend to their affiliated County Associations that they should appoint a coach at a fixed salary for the playing season. This is to take the place of the present arrangements whereby the coach is paid so much per lesson. The ex-player in other words is to be offered a proper full-time job at a living wage.

It is estimated that this coaching scheme will set the F. A. back by quite a considerable amount but though they are regarded as the wealthiest body in the football world they have seldom been big spenders in the past, so it is thought that the outlay will not over embarrass them uduly.

Another factor that will ensure employment for F. A. men is the National Fitness Campaign in Britain and similar organisations abroad.

The fact that the life of a professional footballer is necessarily inclined to be a short one has obviously been receiving considerable attention from the football moguls and it is most praiseworthy that these schemes are giving increasing employment to that very deserving member of the football world, the ex-professional player.—Reuter.

Wife Bounced Him Too Much

Billie Curtis, 3ft. 11in. midget, who married 6ft. 4in. Lois de Fee at Florida, U.S.A., last January, is suing for divorce. He announced the fact on June 20 at Los Angeles . . . and he also said why. He's tired of being bounced up and down on his wife's knee like a baby, states the "Daily Mirror."

When I married Lois, he said, I loved her deeply. Fact that I was very small and she very tall made no difference, but since we were wed I became merely her toy husband. I became terrified lest she put ribbons in my hair. 'Twas intensely humiliating.

And it's hard on Lois, too. Because bouncing is her profession. She was a "bouncer" (chucker-out).

Dizzy Dean May Sue Cardinals

Claims His Arm Was Hurt By Overwork

Chicago, July 9.

Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, former star twirler for the St. Louis Cardinals now playing with the Chicago Cubs, today threatened to sue the Cardinals for alleged responsibility for his sore arm which has kept him off the diamond the greater part of the past two seasons.

Dean said when arriving at Wrigley Field today that he was considering suing the Cardinals for $250,000. He had visited an arm specialist before arriving at the Cubs's home field.

"I think I've got good grounds for a suit," Dean said. "My arm was hurt by overwork."

Baseball officials said they saw no grounds for Dean's suit.—United Press.

France Finds Big Gun To Stop Air-raids

The Invention of a Jew Expelled from Germany

France is about to start production of a new type of anti-aircraft gun, firing a huge shell, which it is believed will stop any air raid. And it is the invention of a jew expelled from Germany, states the correspondent of "The People."

Working for months to perfect means of defence against aircraft, French experts have now achieved results justifying the greatest optimism.

France has already gone further in this direction than any other country by putting into service a new type of anti-aircraft gun. Lately it has been rumoured that the United States has a gun capable of discharging to an unusual altitude a six-inch shell. But there is no rumour in the present case.

It can be stated definitely that the French invention is real and that several million pounds of the vast sums earmarked for rearmament by the Government have been allocated for the production of enough batteries of the new anti-aircraft guns to bar the road into France for enemy aircraft.

Massed Batteries

The calibre of the shell used in the new gun is between six and seven inches, and the range will be at least a mile beyond the practicable flying height of modern bombers. Rapidity of fire will be such that with massed batteries it will be impossible for any machine to pass.

Without registering direct hits, the projectiles will create overhead atmospheric disturbances that must prove fatal to bombers coming within an eighth of a mile of these zones. Conditions equivalent to a hurricane will be set up.

Many secret tests of the new weapon have been made in the past twelve months. At first they were not entirely satisfactory, but the final tests gave such satisfaction that the heads of the Air Ministry believe air raids will be impossible once the barrage is set going.

I am able to reveal for the first time that the inventor of this gun was forced to leave Germany at the moment when he was in secret negotiation with the authorities for the rights in his discovery. He brought his plans out of the country at great personal risk, for after he had been served with notice to quit the Nazi Air Ministry advised the police that he must be stopped at all costs. But the police failed to find him.

Last of the Graces

The youngest and only surviving son of the famous "W.G.," Major C. B. Grace, hit a boundary creating a record for his club and then collapsed and died at the wicket almost before the spectators had finished applauding him. He was 56 years old.

Major Grace was playing for the Weald Electricity Company's Club, which he founded, at Sidley, Bexhill, Sussex, says Reuter. The Club had scored 285 and wanted 300 to establish a club record. At this point Major Grace went in and brought the score up to 296.

Then with a beautiful drive through the covers, he stood watching the ball go to the boundary. He turned round and watched the boy mark up the coveted 300 on the score board and then collapsed.

"As we rushed up to him," said Mr. Turner, who was umpiring the game, "he partly raised himself and said 'I'm all right', but he fell back, and when a doctor arrived he was dead."

Mr. J. Hubbard, the secretary of the Club said: "Major Grace lived for cricket, and just before he went in he said how fit he was feeling. He was never happier than when on the cricket field."—Reuter.

That hardy perennial, "The Drunkard," will be a future item from the Warners. It was made about three years ago by another company. Paul Muni is said to be showing considerable interest in James Hilton's "We Are Not Alone."

London Money Market

London, July 9.

Contrary to general expectations that, with the turn of the half-year credit would again become easy, lending institutions, outside of the clearing banks circle, have been able during the past week to charge up to 1 per cent. for accommodation against bonds as security, owing to the activity on the Stock Exchange. This caused a keen demand for financing operations, thus revealing some shortage in supplies.

Clearing banks, however, have plentiful supplies of money and were occasional good buyers of bills, which occasionally caused easier bill rates.—Reuter.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, July 9.

Although it appeared yesterday as though the share market would recover from the depression that has persisted throughout the week, the quietness that customarily prevails at the weekend proved enough to check the new upward tendency, the market today proving extraordinarily weak.

The turnover was even smaller than usual, many wellknown shares being neither in demand nor on offer. Under these circumstances quite small chance orders were often enough to cause a relatively large change in the quotations although as a rule price changes were not greater than one per cent.

On the fixed interest securities market the offer was greater than the demand but the actual turnover remained small. Reichs old liquidation loan stood unchanged at 131 3/4, while Young Loan weakened 1/4 to 100 3/4. Prices of gold mortgage bonds were erratic.

Callmoney stood at 2 7/8 to 3 3/8 per cent.—Trans-Ocean.

U.S. Commodities

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, July 9.

Trading was moderately active in the cotton market, with prices early declining on Liverpool cables, overnight realizing and foreign selling. Subsequently, the market was steadier in sympathy with the action of stocks and on reports of rains in portions of the Western and Central belts. Finally, prices once again declined on renewed liquidation to close from 12 to 14 points below yesterday's levels.

Wheat prices in the Chicago Grain Pit eased on disappointing Liverpool cables, favourable weather, expectations of a liberal week-end receipts and a large increase in the visible supply. Later, the market steadied up to higher stock prices, evening-up operations prior to the issuance of the Government report and the lightness of pressure due to the loan announcement. At the final bell, quotations ranged from 7/8 of a cent to 1 cent down.

Bombay Cotton Market

Bombay, July 9.

Cotton prices in the Bombay market during the past week showed reluctance to follow the American advance, thereby causing a widening in the parity, which, however, failed to bring a marked response from either export or domestic mills accounts.

Latterly, some buying of a professional and speculative character developed, coupled with option dealers covering spot, which was not very satisfactory.

While the Continent and Lancashire were better buyers, Japanese interests were disappointing, with mills not making any fresh purchase on a large scale.

Monsoon developments were satisfactory, with beneficial spells of bright and clear weather.—Reuter.

New York Stocks

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, July 9.

Stock prices on Wall Street today mostly finished with gains from fractions to about 1 point. Trading was very quiet, with traders cautious. Steels improved on indications of higher steel mill operations next week. Oils were sustained on good earnings outlook, while coppers were given support despite a lower copper demand. Motors responded to the improvement in the Auto industry. There was little real bearishness, although it was believed that a comprehensive move has not yet been completed. The turnover amounted to 590,000 shares.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Traders on the Stock Exchange today were encouraged by the following factors: steel mill operations in the Pittsburgh, Chicago and Youngtown districts being scheduled by as much as nine points higher; Automobile Manufacturers' Association showing dealer stocks have been further reduced during May; Department Stores sales improving the technical position of the market improving; and, industrial employment increasing. Unfavourable factors were: second quarter reports may discourage sentiment; the non-clarification of the utility situation; the fear of material prices rising; and, the "witch burning" monopoly investigations.

U.S. Dollar/Sterling Parity

New York, July 9.

The recent decline in sterling has been accompanied by rumours that sterling may be depreciated against the dollar. However, well-informed quarters pointed out that developments in Great Britain and other countries fully explain the decline without reference to any intention to seek a lower quotation for sterling by Great Britain.

The fundamental factor in sterling, it is said, would be an unfavourable balance of payments, while conditions in other countries, where the activities of the British Equalisation Fund are in operation, served to obscure this influence but was not able to eliminate it.

At present, it is said, it is not likely that the dollar and sterling relation will suddenly be disturbed, because of the following factors: —

Although the British authorities feel that sterling at the rate of $5.00 to the pound is over-high, it is rather contrary to the equalisation policy to use any qualified selling of sterling by acquiring foreign exchange together with gold; and,

Great Britain knows that the United States does not like to see sterling fall materially below the original parity which would arouse agitation in the United States for further depreciation of the dollar.

Thus, unless unforeseen events undermine confidence sterling may sag back to the original parity of about $4.85 to the pound. However, deliberate action to bring about a sharp depreciation is not anticipated. —Reuter.

Int. Sugar Council

London, July 10.

The International Sugar Council, which met in London this week for the discussion of the statistical position during the second year of the International Sugar Agreement, beginning September 1, 1938, adjourned yesterday until July 13, in order to allow the delegates to refer to their respective Governments for further instructions.

A communique issued by the Council states that substantial progress has been made.

The announcement came too late to affect the London terminal sugar market, which closed at noon yesterday, while the New York sugar market is closed on Saturdays.—Reuter

Reichsbank Return

Berlin, July 10.

The weekly Reichsbank return issued here yesterday shows the gold stock unchanged at 70,800,000 Marks while the foreign exchange holdings have increased by 200,000 to 5,800,000 Marks, making the total note cover 76,600,000 Marks.

The note circulation declined by 244,200,000 to 6,195,800,000 Marks, while the total amount of credit issued, as measured by bills, cheques, investments and advances, declined by 364,700,000 to 6,728,100,000 Marks.

The total amount of legal tender was returned at 8,204,000,000 as against 6,718,000,000 on the same date of last year.—Trans-Ocean.

Improvement on Wall Street

New York, July 9.

Indicating Wall Street's improved sentiment, a seat on the New York Stock Exchange today was sold for $80,000, an increase of $12,000 over the last previous sale.—United Press.

THE Farm Credits Bureau of the Ministry of Economics has decided to open co-operative loan agencies in Chenyuan, Tushan and eight other districts of Kweichow Province, says a dispatch to the "Sin Wan Pao." Employees of the Bureau, sent to push the scheme, are reported to have arrived in Kweiyang from Chungking.
